Coming School Graduation Exercises Set

Corning — Annual commencement exercises at the three local parochial elementary schools will be held here Thursday and Friday, June 19-20, with 71 students receiving diplomas.

The Rev. William Roche, assistant superintendent of schools for the Rochester Diocese, will return to his own school to give the principal address at St. Vincent de Paul's, Friday evening, June 20, at 7:30 p.m.

FATHER ROGERS, a former resident of Corning, is the son of Mrs. Joseph F. Roche Sr. of 251 Bridge St. He was graduated from St. Vincent's school and Northside High School after which he entered St. Bernard's Seminary in Rochester.

He will address the 23 members of this year's graduating class. The Rev. James F. Slattery, assistant pastor in the parish, will present the class during the ceremony; and the Rev. Joseph E. Guilfoill, pastor, will present diplomas.

The Rev. Gerald E. Dunn, assistant pastor of St. Patrick's Church, will be the speaker at the Commencement exercises of St. Patrick's School, to be held at 7:30 p.m. on June 19, at the church. Names of pupils who will be presented with awards will be announced later. There will be 23 graduates.

St. Mary's School will graduate 25 students at exercises to be held at the church at 7:30 p.m. on June 20. Details of the program have not yet been completed.

Accepts Honorary Degree Msgr. Cleary Calls Youths, Victims Of False Philosophy Of Discipline

Greensburg, Pa. — (NC) — Today's young people make up neither a "beat" nor a "silent" generation, but rather are the "articulate" and "aggressive" victims of a false philosophy of discipline.

Monsignor Donald M. Cleary, chaplain to Catholic students at Cornell University, Ithaca, of-mencement address at Seton Hill College here. Monsignor Cleary received an honorary degree of Doctor of Laws. Cornell has been the scene of recent outbreaks of student violence.

Students like those who took part in the demonstrations at Cornell, he said, are the "full-blown" products of an educational theory which has as its fundamental premise a glaring error.

"THE ERROR, he continued, is the belief that liberty and freedom are unconditional and unrestricted commodities, that philosophy which teaches that order can be established without discipline and that morality in its broadest sense is the product of the adored democratic process."

This point of view, Monsignor Cleary said, is "the only possible explanation of students' violent reaction to anything which resembles authority or discipline. While unexpressed, their attitude seems to be: We will accept and live by only those rules and that code which WE consider to be just and fair."

"To a great segment of our college men and women today," the speaker declared, "freedom is a situation in which the individual can do or say anything which he wants to say or do, without regard to the rights or privileges of anyone else. To them the exalted idea of the dignity of man has been corrupted into the idea of the supremacy of the individual's judgment."

"WHEN THEY are told that liberty is the opportunity to do that which one ought to do, they immediately chuck on the word."

MONSIGNOR DONALD M. CLEARY, Catholic chaplain, Cornell University who received an honorary Doctor of Laws degree at Seton Hill College, Greensburg, Pa. watches as Bishop Hugh L. Lamb of Greensburg confers 2500th degree on Towako Sakurai of Tokyo, Japan.

"ought," if it implies authority, restriction and limitation, and these words have long since been deleted from their lexicons.

"One might say that young people have always rebelled against authority, have always resented discipline, have always fought against strictures on speech and actions. . . . But it has been left to this generation to deny the very right of authority and discipline to exist."

Monsignor Cleary pointed out that "order cannot exist without authority, virtue cannot flourish without discipline. Any philosophy which teaches the contrary must of necessity incite chaos and anarchy."

$1,000 Presented Pastor By Club In Painted Post

Painted Post — Installation of officers, including Mrs. Robert

Maurer as new president, highlighted the meeting of the Immaculate Heart of Mary Church's Catholic Women's Club last week, the final program before summer recess.

SOME 80 MEMBERS, husbands and guests attended the meeting at which Mrs. Thomas O'Malia, retiring president, served as installing officer.

Others installed were: Mrs. Thomas Elmer, vice president; Mrs. Frederick Balcom, secretary; Mrs. Darwin Arnold, treasurer; Mrs. Margaret Culp, and Miss Shirley Frost, directors.

The meeting, following a turquoise supper, was opened with prayer by the Rev. Harold F. Rogers, pastor.

FATHER ROGERS accepted $1,000 from the club, to be used for the church debt.

Entertainment was provided by the Four Posters, a Barbershop quartet from Painted Post.

Mrs. O'Malia welcomed these present and thanked children of money raising projects throughout the year, officers and members of the club for their cooperation.

Mrs. John McCaffery, a teacher at Painted Post High School, was welcomed as a future member.

The committee responsible for the success of the meeting, was composed of the following:
