THE COURT'S action climaxed a year-long legal battle which started shortly after Pope Pius XII had complained hat "vulgarly pornographic posters" were being displayed in disregard of the sacred character of Rome as the center

Pope Pius voiced his criticism at an audience in 1957 to Rome's Lenten preachers. He said indecent movie poster displays were a violation of the Italy-Vatican concordat which pledges the government to ban anything that may becontrary to "the sacred character of the Eternal City."

Less than a week after the Pope's protest, Rome author- taining brochure entitled "Twenities seized some 2,000 film posters. Among them were some ty Five Years for God and Counadvertising a French film, "En Effeuillant La Marguerite" (Plucking the Daisy), starring Brigitte Bardot, which had given: its world premiere in Rome.

There was much confusion for a few hours and immediately after lunch, the check was carefully taken to the Auburn Trust Company, Auburn, N.Y.

"There the young priest sought advice on how to invest so much money. He thought of buying Eastman Kodak stock which at that time was very low-about thirty dollars a share. He waited in the lobby for some advice for nearly two hours, -

"Just about closing time, he was accosted by an Auburn hustness man, J. Joseph Harrington, who in his jovial way, suggested that the money be invested in real estate on the east side of Owasco Lake.

"THE PRIEST, with the rheck still in his hand, thought for a
