PITTSFORD GROWING UP TO 615 FT. ABOVE SEA

St. Louis Parish Subdivision Being Developed By Ben Levin

By FRANK J. GIBLIN

Hailed as the largest residential subdivision with sanitary sewers, as well as having the highest elevation of any tract in Pittsford; Ben Levin's "Pittsford Heights" was officially opened for development last week.

The 75 acre parcel running from South Main Street (Pittsford) beyond Jefferson Road, over the village water tower hill, and down the eastern slope to the Jefferson Avenue curve, comprises 150 large lots.

Considerable interest has been evidenced from Catholic families seeking homes conveniently located near the new St. Louis Church and Parochial School, according to Mr. Levin who is about to build on 40 lots at the South Main Street entrance at Hilltop Drive. Storm sewers have been installed sufficiently deep to eliminate the need for sump pumps in basements; he pointed out.

The introduction of "Pittsford Heights" to home seekers ends three years of planning by Ben Levin who visioned a restricted tract in Pittsford complete with sanitary sewers.

The completion last week of final arrangements for the Pittsford sewer system and the operation of a town-owned disposal plant may mark a most decisive step forward in the development of Pittsford in keeping with the high caliber of its present residents, according to Edward D. Seward, town supervisor.

To maintain the present high standards, rigid building restrictions will be enforced, Seward stated, and added that, coupled with the new sewer system, the fact that the town offers the lowest tax rate in the county adds to the prevailing surge in home building plans in Pittsford. There are presently only 1.08 residents per acre on the town's total of 14,720 acres.

Ben Levin, owner, developer and builder of Pittsford Heights is best known in the city of Rochester through his purchase of many of the fine old homes along East Avenue thoroughfare since the end of World War 2. Without sacrificing their appeal of grandeur and seclusion, Mr. Levin converted them into apartments for the semi-retired and for business and professional couples. The grounds are carefully maintained.

Among the best known of his holdings, in proximity to the Diocesan House, residence of His Excellency, Bishop Kearney, and the famous Eastman House, are: the former Bonbright mansion, 950 East Avenue (8 apts.), the former Hollister homestead, former Alling home, 901 East 987 East Avenue (15 apts.), the Avenue (13 apts.), the Dinninger home, 963 East Avenue (3 apts.), and the old Antice home, just off East Avenue on Culver Road.

Diocese Beneficiary Of Hickey Estate

A sum of $10,286 was bequeathed to the Diocese of Rochester in the will of Constance J. Hickey of 2100 St. Paul St., made known last week. Another $10,286 was left to the Rochester Community Chest. The estate amounted to $117,500.

The bequest to the diocese requested that it be used by "Bishop James E. Kearney, or his successor in confidence that he or his successor will keep in mind educational institutions in the Diocese in which my husband and I have been interested."

The late Mrs. Hickey was the wife of Jeremiah G. Hickey, president of Hickey-Freeman Co., clothing manufacturers. Bequests included Mr. Hickey and the four sons and two daughters.

St. Josaphat's New Iconostasis

New hand carved $15,000 icon screen at St. Josaphat's Eastern Rite Church, Hudson Ave., Rochester, displays pictures of the Blessed Virgin Mary and other saints. "Royal Doors" in center lead to main altar. Rev. Alexander Lonkewycz, assistant pastor, conducts devotions honoring our Lady.

No Recession With The Man Upstairs Says Jim Malley

By FRANK J. GIBLIN

Thousands of Rochesterians have noted the triangular lot facing kitty-corner from St. Ambrose church property at the intersection of Culver Road, Empire Boulevard, and Clifford Avenue.

Many observant people have noted how different business have started there, struggled for awhile, and finally gave up.

To those living in the immediate area, the lot was considered a "Jonah," and a veritable "white elephant" to the reality trade.

No one reckoned on Jim Malley, his partner J. Murray Simpson... and most important of all, according to Malley's telling, "the Man upstairs."

It seems that Jim had been unemployed for some time and, being 52, it had become a problem of grave concern. Always a go-getter, he had been the superintendent of the Hathaway Baking Company for 32 years. Malley was almost stumped by the problem of where to go-and-get.

He got in touch with his old side-kick, J. Murray Simpson, who had given 22 years of his life to Hathaway, and the two friends put their heads together and by a chance their combined eyes focused on the triangular lot mentioned in the first paragraph.

W. Murray Simpson, Ex-Sheriff

"Against all advice to the contrary, even from my pastor," says Malley, we both decided to
