

Osservatore Scores Film Festival On Award Choice

Vatican City — (RNS) — Osservatore Romano, Vatican City newspaper, sharply criticized the action of the International Film Festival at Venice in awarding a prize to a motion picture which the paper described as "offending the Christian Faith."

The film, entitled "The Creation of the World" was produced in Communist Czechoslovakia. The Vatican paper said "it is nothing less than an ironical interpretation of the first pages of the Bible."

Osservatore also criticized the Italian socialist newspaper, AVANTI, for having "applauded this film."

"Is it possible in Italy," it asked, "that a film offending the Christian Faith can not only be shown, but also lauded and given a prize? In this way, anti-religious propaganda penetrates where Communism does not dominate, and the cinema is transformed into a school of atheism."

Publishers Warn Film Industry On Movie Ads

Los Angeles — (NC) — Newspaper publishers here have warned the motion picture industry that parents are rebelling against objectionable movie advertising.

The daily film trade publication said Arthur G. Pollock, chairman of the Los Angeles Newspaper Publishers' Association, had written a letter to all major studios asking them to clean up their advertising.

"More and more parents are rebelling about their children being exposed to some of the present theater (advertising) copy," the association letter said.

Studios were asked by Pollock: "Will you please be your own censor? ... The last thing they (the publishers) want to do is to act as censor and be forced to censor all theater copy."

The Hollywood Reporter quoted Pollock's letter as stating that the downtown dailies were getting "more and more complaints about some of the current theater advertising."

The letter, reportedly written on orders from publishers of all the dailies, said if "those responsible for your copy will keep one thing in mind—young people of an impressionable age read these advertisements—possibility of newspaper censorship could be avoided."
