

Children's High Mass Televised

London—(RNS)—Hailed as one of the most interesting experiments of its kind, a children's High Mass was televised from the school hall of St. James Secondary Modern School at Burnt Oak, Middlesex, conducted by Dominican nuns.

By special permission of Archbishop William Godfrey of Westminster, children not only served the Mass but sang the responses. The Mass was celebrated at an altar erected in the middle of the hall, with the students grouped all around it.

The Mass was probably the first to be televised in Britain without viewers' attention being distracted by close-ups of stained glass windows or architectural details.

American Priest 'Gets Things Done'

Manchester, England, Aug. 4.—(NC)—"The quiet American who gets things done," as his flock here calls him, has marked up another success.

Father George Rudrof, a Franciscan Conventual, from Immaculate Conception province, Syracuse, N.Y., is opening the new St. Clare's church here. It was constructed at a cost of $270,000.

He has raised more than $700,000 for St. Clare's church and school since 1948 when he came to England.

Father Rudrof's first task was to build a rectory. It was completed in 1953 after he had raised $57,020. Later that year, an extension was added to the school at a cost of $129,000.

Earlier this year, the American priest opened a new school here at a cost of $315,000.

After Year In America Foreign Teenagers Sing U.S. Praises

Washington—(NC)—Americans worried about the impression they make on the rest of the world can take heart from the fact that 12 months in this country have made 90 foreign teenagers into 90 firm friends of the U.S.

The students spent the past year as participants in the international high school student program sponsored by the Education Department of the National Catholic Welfare Conference.

During an interview the lively youngsters, ranging in age from 16 to 18, displayed an affectionate understanding for almost every aspect of American life. They were on their way back to their homes in Europe and Latin America.

THEY AGREED unanimously that the impression of America and Americans that they had received at home and other sources was nothing like the reality.

Michele Gouard, 18, of Croix-Nord, France, summed up for all when she remarked that, on the basis of her prior information about the U.S., she "had a feeling I didn't know Americans at all when I first came here." Michele spent her year in a Wilmette, Ill., home.

Regina Cornelius, 18-year-old from Hamburg, agreed and added that she found "people are exactly the same here as in Germany. They are very friendly." Her 12 months were passed in Joliet, Ill.

But if people are the same everywhere, their customs are not, the youngsters declared. School work, for example, is a good deal lighter here than in their countries, they said.

All students who take part in the program, begun in 1951, have reached a point in their schools at home comparable to the senior year of high school here.

In this country they live with an American host family and attend local Catholic high schools, which provide them with full scholarships for the year.

Jose Fong, 17-year-old from Havana, Cuba, who stayed in Fremont, Ohio, remarked that one thing that makes American schools easier than those of other countries is the fact that "you can choose your own subjects." A good point of American schools, he added, is that "you can take a more active part in discussions" during classes in sociology, history and other subjects.

The youngsters leveled their strongest criticisms at the American emphasis on sex—"too much sex in everything," Jose Fong declared—and at steady dating among teenagers, which they described as "kind of dumb."

But other teenage fads won their approval. Regina Cornelius recalled that "coming over on the boat we laughed at Bermuda shorts. Now all of us wear them and we're proud to do so." She said she heard it first in their own countries before coming here.

The students were surprised by the lavish way Americans spend their money and by the large amounts they have to spend. "Teenagers here have more money than in Europe," Gunter Schloenwitz, 18, of Kempton, Algeau, Germany, asserted after a year in Chicago, Ill. At home, he said, a reasonable allowance is one penny—about 12 cents—per week.

The students declared that
