'Education Partners'

Auxiliary Bishop Lawrence E. Casey, blessed expectant mothers in an impressive ceremony Monday, the Feast of the Nativity of the Blessed Virgin Mary at Sacred Heart Cathedral.

Congratulating the soon-to-be mothers, Bishop Casey said that the 185 women receiving the blessing was the biggest number ever to attend the ceremony.

ALSO GATHERED in the church were members of Sacred Heart's Rosary Guild, who with the expectant mothers, heard a talk by Rev. William M. Roche, associate superintendent of schools, in the school auditorium afterwards.

Father Roche told the gathering that his field in education "is, in a sense, parallel to yours. For while you must bear the primary responsibility for the education of your child, you leave a portion of that responsibility to me."

"We see your child as a soul created by God, destined for eternal life. And, so, we supplement the education you give him, to develop his whole personality."

The group was also told by Father Roche that the "development of the child is twofold. Catholic education provides the child with the best understanding he can have of the arts and sciences to equip him for a productive life on earth; and it educates him spiritually, to give him a proper sense of moral values so that one day his successful life will be crowned with a blissful eternity. That's why you want so we're partners, you and I."

THE RITE in the cathedral consisted of the recitation of the Rosary after which Bishop Casey conferred the blessing with a relic of St. Gerard Majella, who is popularly called "the Mother's Saint."

The expectant mothers were also given a medal of the saint by Father Francis J. Taylor, assistant at the cathedral parish, who assisted Bishop Casey during the ceremony.

The ceremony was concluded with Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament.

MRS. RUSSELL Di Bella of 1695 Clifford Ave., a member of the Annunciation Parish, receives Bishop Casey's blessing at the annual blessing of expectant mothers rite held Monday at Sacred Heart Cathedral. Mrs. Di Bella, who expects her baby at the end of January, has two other children.

Slow Boat From India

Indian Nuns At Nazareth

By FRANK KELLY

It took Phoenix Foggy 80 days to circle the globe in Jules Verne's "Around the World in 80 Days," and at the end, he was a pretty tired Englishman.

Two equally tired returning freshmen at Nazareth College were on a ship for 29 days that took them half way around the world by way of the Red Sea, Suez Canal, Mediterranean Sea and the Atlantic Ocean—the reverse of the fictional Mr. Foggy's trip—before landing in New York.

But instead of Englishmen, the voyage brought two Indian native Carmelite Nuns to our shores—with a far better purpose in mind. The two nuns intend to pursue a nursing course at Nazareth College.

BOTH NATIVES of the State of Kerala, Sister Delanie and Sister Daria both found this country as they expected it to be—the people very friendly and warm and the topography beautiful.

They admitted, however, that they were surprised by two things. The Statue of Liberty in New York harbor "was thought it was a statue of Christ welcoming us to America," Sister Delanie said.

The other thing that surprised them was a reporter wanting to interview them.

Both very shy and under the protective wing of Sister Helen Daniel, S.S.J., a member of the college faculty and chairman of its speech department, the Sisters found it a little difficult to understand the remarkable used an American reporter, but with the English translation Sister Helen Daniel, the two nuns were able to answer questions put to them.

Natives of a state that is predominantly Catholic—but which is under a Communist government—both Sisters predicted that it would not be too long before the Communists would be defeated by the vote of the people.

MEMBERS of a sister club led under Sister Daria and Sister Delanie were sent here to study nursing by the Mother General of their monastery, after Father Jacob Chalamandy, secretary to the Archbishop of Verapoly, India, visited Nazareth Motherhouse last year. He received permission from Mother Helen to send two nuns to study at the college.

Graduates of Catholic high schools in India, both Nuns proudly boast that their heritage is more Catholic than most Americans can claim. They said that Christianity in their land first dates back to St. Thomas the Apostle.

THE SISTERS come from farming families in India and they come from St. Joseph's Carmelite convent in Verapoly, Kerala, which is in the southern part of India.

Sister Delanie has two brothers and three sisters, two of whom are also Carmelite Nuns. Sister Daria has three sisters and a brother. Her brother is now studying to be a journalist.

Before joining the Carmelites, both Sisters belonged to the Society of Our Lady and the Legion of Mary in high school. Sister Daria was secretary of her "solidarity group" and Sister Delanie, who also writes poetry, also belonged to the Third Order of Franciscans.

Sister Daria took her first vows as a Carmelite two-and-a-half years ago, while Sister Delanie was first professed two years ago.

The Sisters visited the Carmelite Monastery on Jefferson Rd., Rochester, after arriving here and were very much impressed with it.

They will be in this country about five years after which they will go back to India. While their community is currently starting a hospital for the benefit of all the native population.

THE SISTERS are not the first of their order to come to study in this country. Sister Theresa Margaret, a member of their community, who met them in New York, has been taking a pre-medical course at St. Bonaventure University for the past two and a half years.

The Sisters are living at the Nazareth Motherhouse with the Sisters of St. Joseph for the first time in their new dormitory when it opens in January.
