AMONG WOMEN Guilt Complex

By Mary Lennon Snyder

Perhaps some of us suffer subconsciously from a guilt complex from time to time...

However, we have, at last, a champion in Mrs. Jean Holzhauer, a free-lance writer who in the Sept. 20 issue of "America" speaks up for us...

For some time now it has seemed to me that emphasis on such practices, basically non-sentimental or correctly classed as different—discouraged many potential workers from an active participation in lay activity.

To avoid embarrassing my own children I shall classify as private information all details of their early days on the planet...

In fact, because we all like home made bread, it might come under the head of self-indulgence.
