Pope's Message To All

By Mary Lennor Snyder

On August 29, of this year His Holiness Pope Pius XII, addressed the Second International Congress of the Third Order of St. Dominic at Castel Gandolfo. After addressing himself to the members of the Third Order and exhorting them to follow the example of their Founder, St. Dominic, the Holy Father addressed the group in words applicable to all Catholics.

"You belong to an age that sees the triumph of the machine and its tremendous accomplishments. All age of peaceful and social organization, an age in which the economy is subject to the tripartite movement of this and change.

"We are losing touch of its serenity, and always, conscious of the spiritual wealth of men which remain unhonored by all this and a fairly plain, but dignified life by accepting the duties of a world that is its own inventiveness.

"We know that usually it is not possible for you to devote long hours to contemplative exercises. But with the faithful observance of the pious practices outlined in your Rule, you must be careful to cultivate an interior life similar to that of a contemplative religious that is to say, continuous attention to the things of God, a cultivated taste for silent meditation, a fondness for the Divine word found in the Scriptures and to the liturgical offices.
