

Rochester Dentist In Tanganyika Mission

6 COURIER-JOURNAL
Friday, July 10, 1959

Modern dental equipment from Rochester fights tooth problems in missions. Sister Annunciatina holds drill as mission-trained nurse Turilla watches.

These photos tell the six-month story of Dr. Paul S. Lalonde, Rochester dentist, who spent January to June with Medical Missionary nuns in Tanganyika in eastern equatorial Africa.

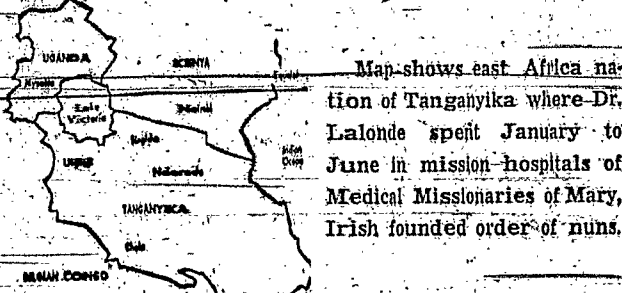

Dr. Lalonde spent a twelve hour day at the order's African headquarters at Ndareda or on safaris to bush clinics on the Congo and Rhodesia borders.

He is now at his Rochester home, 277 Lakeview Park, to take care of his patients here until he returns to the mission outposts in December.

The missionary order of nuns was founded in 1837 by a Dublin nurse, now the order's superior, Mother Mary Martin, who served on the battlefields of World War I.

A Guild has just been organized in the Rochester Diocese to aid the mission program. Rev. George S. Wood, Propagation of the Faith Society director, is moderator.

Dr. Lalonde's Kodachrome pictures have been processed for black-and-white reproduction by Joseph Siplo.

Map shows east Africa nation of Tanganyika where Dr. Lalonde spent January to June in mission hospitals of Medical Missionaries of Mary, Irish founded order of nuns.

Sister Annunciatina (in white) holds child abandoned in jungle, rescued by nuns. Sister Helena is superior at Ndareda mission in Tanganyika.

Mass in the morning means a long trip the day before. Father Gerald Feeley, C.S.Sp., of Syracuse, with Dr. Lalonde and native guide, is ready for a start to outpost mission for Mass and a day of instructions.

Four years of progress in sterilization — from the bunsen burner pot at left to a second hand unit, then a pressure cooker improvised for the purpose, an Army surplus field piece and finally the up-to-date all-steel unit installed this year (with a made in Rochester label).

Vatican Workers Get Pay Boost

Vatican City — (NC) — All Vatican employees have received substantial raises in pay through the initiative of Pope John XXIII.

The new pay scales, effective July 1, provide for an average increase of 25 per cent for employees of the various categories within the State of Vatican City.

At the same time, increases in family allowances have doubled earnings for many workers.

Since the beginning of his pontificate Pope John has made a habit during walks in the Vatican to ask employees about their needs and those of their families. The Pope ordered Cardinal Tardini, Vatican Secretary of State, to study the problem of wage raises. The pay boost announcement came as the result of months of personal work by the Cardinal.

POPE JOHN recently told a group of Vatican employees: "Ours is not an industrial or commercial organization that must show a profit."
After the announcement of raises, many telegrams of thanks to the Pope from Vatican employees were received at the Secretariat of State and the Pope's office.

Pope Installs Air Conditioner

Vatican City — (RNS) — Pope John XXIII has so far ignored the urging of advisers to escape from the Rome heat by going to the papal summer residence at Castelgandolfo, according to Vatican sources. Instead, he said, the 77-year-old Pontiff has ordered air conditioning installed in his apartments, where he maintains a grueling schedule of work.
