

Convention Program Set

Members of Muss Caravan will attend the 26th biennial international convention of the Order of the Sons of the American Revolution, held in Windsor, Canada, sponsored by Governor Caravan No. 72. Ladies will be entertained at a fashion show and luncheon.

The local group will be headed by Supreme Advocate Norman A. O'Brien, past supreme commander, Grand Commander James F. Butler, chief of staff, and representatives of the Supreme Order, Edward G. White, alternate to the grand commander, and Donald E. Weston, alternate to the representative.

MEMBERS of Muss Caravan No. 25 planning to attend the convention are asked to contact Grand Commander James F. Butler, 122 Glenmont Drive, Ellimore 2306.

Activities start Aug. 9 with parade and dedication of the memorial followed by an afternoon Mass officially opening the convention. A moonlight boat trip will be held in the evening.

Business sessions will open at 8 p.m.

A DINNER and floor show will be held that evening at the Elmwood Casino in Windsor.

The second business session will be held Tuesday, Aug. 11 at the Statler Hotel followed by an afternoon tour of Greenfield Village of the Henry Ford Museum. Hospitality night will be observed in the evening with free time for visiting Caravans, hospitality rooms and open house.

FINAL BUSINESS sessions will be held Aug. 12 with election of supreme officers. They will be at the Statler Hotel followed by a stop at Dun Scotus Monastery in the afternoon for snacks and refreshments. A convention banquet and dance will be held at the hotel in the evening.

Library Closes For Repairs

Announcement of the temporary closing of St. Christopher's Library until further notice has been made by Mrs. Marvin E. Johnson, publicity chairman.

Extensive repairs are being made to the meeting rooms and library location in the Catholic Daughters headquarters.

Scouts Praised For Goodwill

Lugano (RNS) — The Roman Catholic Scout movement has an important part to play in promoting goodwill and understanding among all racial and religious groups. Bishop Angelo Jemmi, Apostolic Administrator of the Lugano diocese declared here.

He spoke at a special Mass in connection with the 14th International Catholic Scouts Conference which brought together some 90 delegates from 20 countries.

The bishop, who was among the leading patrons of the conference, said that Catholic Scouts also have an important role to play in the service of the Church.

Court Chaos

I believe it was George Bernard Shaw who once described the U.S. Constitution as a charter of anarchy. The Constitution is nothing of the kind. But I can understand how it might give that impression to an observer in another country, looking at it out of its historical context, and possessing no broad background of information about its real meanings.

The First Amendment, for example, says simply that "Congress shall make no law... abridging the freedom of speech or of the press."

Taking the words baldly as they stand, without reference to the intention of the Founding Fathers who wrote them, it would seem that under the Constitution "anything goes" — that anybody may say anything, publish anything, without hindrance.

THAT, WE KNOW, is emphatically not true. The laws of libel, for one thing, abridge freedom (in the sense of license) of both speech and press.

Further, there is an enormous area in which freedom of expression is sternly circumscribed, either specifically by law, or generally by tradition and precedent.

That area was broadly described by the late Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes (who was certainly about as liberal as they come) when he said that freedom of speech does not include the right to shout "fire" in a crowded theater when there is no fire.

There is not a newspaper or magazine in America that would publish an article in favor of kidnaping, or murder, or torturing animals, or arson, or holding up banks, or blowing up buildings, or assassinating public officials, or debauching children.

Advocacy of such behavior does not come under the constitutional guarantee of freedom of speech and the press — not unless I am gravely mistaken about the meaning of the Constitution.

Therefore I find myself unable to follow the thinking of the U.S. Supreme Court in the decision upsetting the New York State ban on the movie, "Lady Chatterley's Lover."

Let us make one thing clear. I have not seen the movie, and have no opinion about it. I am not talking about the movie, but about the Supreme Court's ruling.

Justice Potter Stewart wrote the majority opinion. He was joined in it by Chief Justice Earl Warren and Justices Hugo L. Black, William O. Douglas and William J. Brennan, Jr.

THEIR OPINION asserts that New York State banned the movie because it "advocates an idea — that adultery under certain circumstances may be proper behavior."

THEIR OPINION asserts that New York State banned the movie because it "advocates an idea — that adultery under certain circumstances may be proper behavior."

In banning the film for that reason, wrote Justice Stewart, New York State "struck at the very heart of constitutionally protected liberty."

The Constitution — so, this opinion argued — "protects advocacy of the opinion that adultery may sometimes be proper, no less than advocacy of socialism or the single tax."

The Supreme Court has been tending in this direction for some years. The reason, in my opinion, is that the justices are making a literalistic interpretation of the Constitution apart from its historical context, from the American tradition, from the intentions of the Founding Fathers, and from common sense.

IF I UNDERSTAND the ruling correctly, anybody is now constitutionally free to advocate such ideas as: human sacrifice, or spitting on the American flag, or contempt for law, or abduction of children for immoral purposes, or shooting down of policemen, or massacre (a la Hitler) of Jews, or any other conceivable abomination.
