Nemesis For NematodesPriest's Aim -- Rid Pakistan Of Pests

Dates — (NC) — An American-born priest is setting up a laboratory here to conduct government-sponsored research on plant pests which are destroying vital crops in Pakistan.

Father Richard Timm, C.S.C., is said to be east Pakistan's only specialist on nematode parasites that plague crop plants. Crops of rice, jute, sugar beets and maize in various parts of East Pakistan have been wiped out in the past because of the activity of nematodes (pinworms).

FATHER TIMM, a member of the Congregation of the Holy Cross, received two research grants from the Pakistan government. The first is from the Pakistan Food and Agricultural Council. The second is from the Pakistan Central Jute Committee.

Both research projects will be carried out at the Catholic-owned Notre Dame College here. The laboratory the priest is preparing is attached to his college. It will house the analytical part of the research.

Through the success of his research, Father Timm hopes to make a significant contribution to the development of food resources and cash crops in East Pakistan. Both are now at the mercy of hundreds of species of parasites of the nematode family.

Father Timm's work will also include efforts to develop con-trols of pests of man.

Father Timm says the worms are found everywhere — in soil, in fresh water, in the sea, in all parts of plants and in all living beings, including men. Some are microscopic in size others up to three feet long. Hookworm is a common example of a nematode parasite of man.

The prelate, he said, has found the 61-year-old cardinal "in very good shape, mentally and otherwise," and added that "all intelligent Communists know he is innocent."

The cardinal has been confined to Krasic since 1951. That was the year when he was released from prison after serving five years of a 16-year term for alleged wartime collaboration with the Nazis. Cardinal Stepinac remains in Krasic under constant surveillance, and may not exercise any of his episcopal functions.
