The Weekly Note from Mr. Pepsi

Yesterday, over the roasted turkey, creamy sweet potatoes and rich turkey dressing, we humbly bowed our heads in thanks.

Many years ago, during the first mending of our nation, men set aside the first day of thanksgiving. They began the tradition at the humble beginning of our country, to stop for just one day and give thanks for their survival thru the winter, and for their bountiful harvest of the summer.

Thanksgiving, 1959, found us offering up thanks for a comparatively peaceful world. It may be that someday all men will be able to offer thanks at a common table of freedom.
