

Nazareth Girls Sojourn In Oklahoma

Twelve students from Nazareth College left by plane, June 13, for Oklahoma City to do six weeks of catechizing and census-taking for the Catholic Diocese there, which actually extends over the whole State of Oklahoma. These girls were a cross-section of the whole Nazareth College student body: One post-graduate who had been teaching in an elementary grade school; four seniors (graduated on June 8 of this year); three sophomores; three juniors and one freshman, all eager to help spread the Kingdom of God in the great Southwest.

Among them were some "specialists" — a sociology major looking to a career in social service; a speech therapist; a secretarial student while most of the others were pointing to careers in the teaching field. Talented, some in ballet, in voice, in art and in music, these would be used in various ways to supplement the teaching of the children coming to vacation schools in and around Oklahoma City.

A FOUR DAY orientation into the techniques of vacation school leadership and census-taking began this experiment, and then the students in teams of two, three, or four, were assigned, some to the city and others to towns and rural areas. The girls approached this work like veterans and had many humorous encounters with southerners who couldn't quite understand why young women should be interested in giving up a summer vacation to help them learn about God.

They were mystified, and in itself this very mystification aroused their interest in both the girls and their message. Only time will show the real results of these contacts, but many good things are expected to come not only to the persons met and interviewed, but to the students themselves who so generously gave both time and effort to this apostolic work. Some of these results may vary well be:

1. The immense personal satisfaction that comes from the fact with wider groups always brings.

4. A chance to see a wholly new section of the United States, diversified as to people, W. Coleman, trustee.

5. A new zest for sharing, for bearing others' burdens, for learning to appreciate one's own blessings, for being a witness for Christ. All of which adds up to a new and better sense of values, and a new and better maturity.

It can be said without question that the summer of 1955 will be a high point in the lives of these students and that they will receive much more joy and inspiration than they have given.

Thru The Looking Glass

Fashion Forecast

By LOUISE WILSON

(Louise Wilson is heard daily, Monday through Friday, on "Women's World" at 10:05 a.m. on Radio Station WHAM.)

Fashion like history seems to be repeating itself for Fall and Winter and not just for the women but for the men! Elsewhere in the world of men's fashions, stripes are no longer the big thing! Top coats are an inch or two shorter than last year ending at the knee. That's about where millady's hemlines rest... just slightly below the knee. And where we made immensely wearable as seen in the "fluid" silhouette, the loose, soft, low-waistline, echoing the 1930's. It seems to put the figure in a swirl of movement.

Another dominant silhouette is the long, tall, semi-fitted silhouette that resembles a test-tube more than anything else until it is relieved with an overblouse, tunic or tiered skirt to break the line.

The third silhouette slated for sure success with the majority of women is the 1950 version of moulded bodice paired with full skirt, the high, shirred, and the skirt with side-windings. When the dress is not actually long-waisted, the effect is achieved with a hip band, low placed pleats or flounces.

The fall coat returns looking quite like the pyramid coat of a few years ago. Full flaring sleeves are set on a very low shoulder line. Fullness at the neckline is draped into cowls, folds or big scarf collars with a long, looped end flung over one shoulder.

When shopping for your new Fall or Winter wardrobe, look to the side! There's a new side slant to fashion, one-sided drapery, side slanting folds, side pleatings on coats and dresses, side-windings skirts, sometimes even "layered" as seen in the illustration.

Color-wise, your favorite fashions will frequently be seen in bluing, shimmering or even striking shades that fairly dazzle the eye. Bright reds, violets and vivid greens and blues. Some are deep, dark and rich, the colors of a harvest, of stained glass and jewels: the purples of grape, plum, aster and amethyst; the deep red of wine, apples, garnets.

IN A MAN'S world, which is generally a pretty stable one, the vest is back again, stronger than ever before. It is anticipated that 50% more suits with vests will be sold this fall, — vests in all shapes, patterns and colors. Very often, they're reversible. Perhaps not even you can explain your sudden interest in vests after all these years. One of your own-ers, a fashion stylist, says: "In an age when women are generally on the move, they need more to provide themselves against the elements."

In the words of the immortal bard:
"I would give up all my fame for a pot of ale...".

OR: Real, honest-to-goodness ale isn't easy to come by these days—so when you find it, grab it. Reach for Genesee Real Ale if you really and truly want the genuine article. It's true-brewed, to be true ale. Brewed by the traditional ale process—with all the extra ingredients that make it ale instead of beer. Once savored, never scorned. Once enjoyed, never forgotten. It's soul-satisfying! Indeed, the great bard would have split his pantaloons for a measure of this superior ale. Real Genesee Ale. Try a frosty bottle. Just try.

"Enjoy real Genesee Ale... 'tis true-brewed!"
