Documentary About Mother Seton

Emmitaburg -- (RNS) -- This scene from a soon-to-be-released 45-minute documentary movie called "The Life of Mother Seton" depicts the 19th century New York-born nun and her little hand on the train from Baltimore to Emmitsburg to establish a new community. The trip actually took about four days in 1809, the year Mother Seton founded the American Sisters of Charity. Recently declared Venerable by Pope John XXIII, Mother Seton is now being considered for bestification, a step toward canonization.

THE STAGE is left bare. No cave for Prospero on his magic island; only some trresolut steps at either side quite for eign to the backdrop of sea shells or the play's action. Years ago, Prospero's wicker brother had usurped the duke-dom of Milan and had put Prospere and his infent daughter, Miranda adrift al sen but as Milan is in the center of Italy it has just occurred to me they had to travel quite a dis-tance to find any boat! Be that Clergy Serve as it may, Prospero's knowledge of magic had brought him to this fale where he had made the witch's son, Caliban and the fairy, Ariel, his servants.
