St. Mary's, Corning New Building Ready For Opening Of School

Corning — When students of St. Mary's Parochial School report for class on Wednesday, Sept. 7, they will be using for the first time the full facilities of the new educational building.

All work on the current building project is complete with the exception of making closures of cracks over the windows and washing the windows, according to announcement by Eugene C. Manning, general contractor.

NO DATE FOR formal acceptance of the building by the parish has been set, although Manning reported that it is expected to take place within the next week or 10 days. The acceptance date, the Rev. Thomas F. Brennan, parish pastor explains, will depend upon the recommendation of the architect, Considine & Haskell of Elmira.

Furniture for the school is on order and is expected to be delivered also within a week. Father Brennan explained that it was not considered desirable to have it delivered before it could be installed.

No date for the dedication of the building will be established until after the opening of school, Father Brennan said. The date will depend on the schedule of Bishop Kearney.

THE BUILDING furnishes an eight-room L-shaped wing with quarters for 120 additional pupils. It has been built on the site of the school's oldest building, which was razed to make room for the new wing.

The first phase of the project, the remodeling of the north building of the school, was completed last summer. The structure provides seven classrooms, offices, and a gymnasium. Work on that phase was started in September, 1958, by contractor W. E. Granger & Sons of Elmira.

Pupils using the building which was razed, moved into the new north building last fall, awaiting construction of the building now being completed. It is opposite the church on State St.
