A GIFT OF CHARTREUSE

Chartreuse Liqueur is one of the most elegant gifts you can select for a friend on your list who has a taste for good living. This rare liqueur has a colorful history dating back to 1605. Today, its secret recipe is known only by a handful of Carthusian Monks who produce it in Voiron near a secluded French monastery. Chartreuse is delicious served straight, on the rocks or over ice cream or fruit.

They Broke Bread With Us

By MARY TINLEY DALY

A letter, received some time ago should, we feel, be answered publicly:

"Dear Mrs. Daly,

"One thing puzzles me and perhaps you can straighten me out. Why, after we've enjoyed a wonderful meal at the Graces after meals do they add that lugubrious note about the souls of the faithful departed? Don't get me wrong. I pray for the faithful departed. But after a joyous occasion, even such as a banquet! Couldn't this prayer more appropriately be added following a Mass?"

Mrs. B.F.W.

That puzzles many people, Mrs. B.F.W. One often notices, especially at a banquet, that talk begins to buzz before that final, "And may the souls of the faithful departed through the mercy of God rest in peace." People are brought up short when, with talk flowing freely, everybody in good mood, stories eliciting laughter, comes that solemn phrase.

However, in this month of November, when our thoughts and prayers are especially slanted toward the poor souls, isn't it rather inspiring to remember that those prayers were interjected all through the year? That it is not just one month in 12 that the poor souls were in our thoughts and prayers?

IT'S EASY to forget. Perhaps not "forget" but postpone the thought of the departed with a subconscious "wait-until-November" attitude.

Human as we are, we never forget to eat. For survival, God has instilled into us the alarm clock which tells us when it is time to re-stock. With that impulse, comes the pleasure of eating, particularly amidst companionable surroundings. This very regularity of eating, with the natural thanking God for giving us "our daily bread" is built-in equipment for Christians.

As a Communion of Saints, it seems to me, those now living might very appropriately remember at every meal those who once broke bread with us.

Lugubrious? Not really, Mrs. B.F.W. One moment of pause, one brief prayer for the departed cannot seriously impair the gaiety of any dinner party.

As November started, you at your house, we at ours, listed the names of the departed for whom we wish the parish Masses offered. Inevitably, each year the list grows longer. This year it is longer than ever — so long, in fact, that an extra sheet of paper had to be inserted into the envelope.

AS WE wrote those beloved names of relatives and friends, came a sadness — a sense of loneliness perhaps would be a better term.

Withal, came the feeling of comfort that there is something we really can do for them. Our prayers, Masses and sacrifices can make a positive contribution toward their happiness.

It has been that way always. In the days of the early Church, we read that it was one great purgatorial society, with prayers for the dead found in the oldest liturgies and breviary prayers and by the earliest Christian inscriptions.

One of the oldest religious orders of the Church, the Benedictines, with all its branches had this in mind. Particularly was this so with the Order of Cluny, which long ago inaugurated All Souls' Day. Down through the ages came the confraternities, established in the Sixth Century, the associations of brotherhoods of prayer, founded chiefly to assist deceased members with Mass prayers.

At the beginning of the 19th Century came vigorous new associations extended to the entire Church, such as Our Lady of Suffrage, founded in 1841; the Archconfraternity for the Relief of the Poor Souls in Purgatory, the Order of the Helpers of the Holy Souls.

WHETHER WE are banded together with others in such a prayer movement or whether we merely offer individual prayers, this month of November brings to mind more forcibly than ever the duty and privilege which is ours of extending Christian charity beyond the grave.

Mass time, meal time and, to paraphrase an old song: January, February, June or November — it's always appropriate to say prayers for the departed.
