THE WEEKLY NOTE FROM MR. PEPSI:

"A statue was never erected to a committee"

This phrase caught our eye several weeks ago. The modern consensus, in business as well as society, is that a group working together can accomplish more than the individual. Yet, how many classics were written by a "committee"? It has been pointed out in recent years by various economists and philosophers that we're fast running down the road to conformity. How many old masters collaborated to produce their works of art?

Each man faces the crisis of tomorrow alone — together, as individuals, we will succeed . . . combined into a frightened mass, with a uniformity of ideas — we will fail.
