Saints of Unity

St Josephat was born at Vladimir in 1582. He became a monk of the Byzantine Rite and Abbot of Vilna, at the time when the Orthodox Dioceses of the Province of Kiev were newly reunited with the Holy See. In 1617 he became Archbishop of Polotak, but secular interests were against him. In 1623 he was murdered by a mob at Vitebsk in White Russla. His feastday is Nov. 14. An Eastern rite Catholic Church on Hudson Ave., Rochester, is dedicated

Vatican Blocks U.S. Bid To Control Narcotics

Federal Narcotics Commismissioner Harry J. Anslinger sharply protested here against the defeat of a key provision in a proposed new international convention against narcotics and blamed it on a last-minute objection by the Vatican.

The provision would have recommended civil commitment of known narcotics addicts to hospitals, a procedure similar to that for commitment of persons with mental disease and to that in a growing number of countries for commitment of chronic -alco-

The Holy See, participating in the 70-nation conference in its capacity as a sovereign state, objected on the ground it might interfere with "basic human rights."

Basis of the Vatican's concern was apparently a fear that it would give Communist nations a new legal pretense for persecution of Cathonic bishops, priests, and laymen.

Following the statement of the vatican's objection, which was presented by Msgr. Timothy J. Flynn of New York, who represented the Holy See, a majority of the Catholic countries of Europe and Latin America withdrew their support and austained, and the provision, strongly supported by the United States delegation, went down to defeat.

The vote was 10 to 7 with 26 abstentions. Delegates from 27 nations were absent because a General Assembly session of the United Nations was in progress on the Congo question at that hour on March 21. A plea by Mr. Anslinger and the U.S. delegation for reconsideration of the vote was subsequently denied and the conference, which opened January 24, closed March 25, after adopting a convention described by Mr. Anslinger as "so watered down" that he is doubt-

Commitment of drug addicts to hospitals, instead of jail, has been a long-term crusade by Mr. Anslinger, who has headed the Treasury's narcotics bureau for 31 years, a term of service outranked im federaj law enforcement only by the 36 years in which J. Edgar Hoover has headed the F.B.I.

"An addict is a walking "Typhoid Mary'," Mr. An-slinger declared. "The principal way in which drug addiction is acquired is through association with another addict. They dearly love company and are constantly leading friends, male and female, into the habit."

Commitment to a hospital upon proof to a civil court by a panel of physicians that an individual is a narcotics addict is the most effective way of curbing the narcotics traffic, in Mr. Anslinger's opinion, since as long as addicts circulate freely in society their intense craving for the heroin, marijuana or opiates they require provides a ready market for the nefarious international traffic in illegal narcotics which the international convention is designed to halt.

Text of the statement on behalf of the Holy See, delivered just before voting March 21, in the conference's executive session, has been made public as follows:

"Our delegation endorses every human and effective means of treatment for narcotics addiction. We realize that treatment in a hospital institution is worthwhile and. indeed, one of the most effective means of treatment.

"However, we recognize that there is no general agreement on how drug addiction should be treated. There comes to mind in the case of this resolution a question whether in civil commitment -in the case of an adult without a criminal record. relevance - there is not involved here a possible violation of human rights.

resolution. Moreover, we are speaking here of a resolution to be associated with a conchallenge to put the Church's vention which will have, we hope, world-wide applicability not one which will just be applicable to the United States." Subsequently, Msgr. Flynn said, "It is conceivable and true that in certain countries where there is a well-established rule of law, civil commitment laws could be administered in a way as not to infringe on civil rights."

"But we don't think this belongs in any international treaty," he declared. "Certain countries incarcerate anyone they please in any event. We see no reason to give them. in an international convention, some specious basis of

> Mr. Anslinger said that, to be logical, "the Vatican must now oppose civil commitment for insane persons or for alcoholics or epileptics, since this too could be subject to the same abuse."

However, he said the strongest objection of the American delegation to the Vatican's position is that it was taken too late to be subject to full debate in the 70nation conference.

"We had been meeting for nine weeks and during most of that time the Holy See had no one present," he asserted. "They had received a copy of that was circulated, and the original draft convention voiced no objection. At the last minute, when delegates were preparing to vote, and more than one-third were absent, they came in with this statement and, of course, the Catholic delegates had no option than to follow the position of their Church."

The District of Columbia and a number of states, such as New York, Illinois, Minnesota, and Texas, now have such civil commitment laws. Such countries as Iran, France, Germany, Spain, Portugal, Brazil, and Argentina also have hospitalization

Mr. Anslinger, by appointment of President Kennedy, headed the U.S. delegation to fixe conference. Two Roman Catholics, Carl de Baggio and Henry Giordano, both veteran narcotics law enforcement officers, were members of the American delegation and supported the U.S. position.

The conference was sponsored by the United Nations. but admitted a number of non-UN members, including Vatican City.

Throughout the conference "There is a fundamental U.S. efforts for a strong conproblem of human rights to vention were opposed by the Soviet bloc, leading Mr. Anshould, be a matter of interest slinger to charge them with an ulterior motive of protecting Communist China's lucrative traffic in illegal opium. # UnAmerican Methods of Right Wing Groups

by GERARD E. SHERRY

Editor, Central California Register

One of the most healthy signs in our national life is the emergence of leading secular newspaper editorials in various parts of the country deploring the unAmerican activities of some so-called anti-communist

In California, the reputable and conservative Los Angeles Times recently had a series on the John Birch Society, an ultra right wing organization which claims to be fighting Com-

A semi-secret document called "The Politician" written and circulated by Robert H. W. Welch, Jr., founder of the Birch Society, almost insinuated that President Eisenhower is a dedicated Communist and that late President Roosevelt was guilty of treason. The pamphlet is replete with accusations of disloyalty against many public officials who are charged with deliberately leading the United States toward Communism.

Only recently J. Edgar Hoover, Director of the F.B.I., had reason to caution anti-Communists against using smear tactics. Furthermore, former Vice President Richard Nixon in a letter to the Los Angeles Times warned against unAmerican methods in fighting Com-

This is a healthy sign because we are being treated to the speciacle of anti-Communist groups cropping up all over the place. There is nothing wrong with this. Indeed, it could be helpful, but only if such groups are concerned with the problem as part of the broader problem of defending spiritual as veli as material values.

This is all related to tactics used by some of our Catholic anti-Communist groups. One has only to think of the Christian Educational Association of Union, New Jersey, which publishes "Common Sense". The publication, which is supported by priests and laity, has a reputation for being anti-Semetic and anti-Negro. Last year it published a story headlined "Kennedy's Marxist Record."

Then there are recent charges made by the Cardinal Mindszenty Foundation against the Foreign Policy Association. The Foundation rehashed old charges against the FPA, quoting a presentiment of the Grand Jury of Fulton County in Georgia, which is alleged to have declared the FPA a "subversive or

It did, However, I question its attack on the FPA is however, question the loyalty of one of the writers for the FPA's "Great Decisions" Program which is conducted through public and Catholic schools. The writer in question, Mrs. Vera M. Dean, is a part time employee of the FPA. She denies that she was ever active in any Communist front organization. Some of to our liking, but this doesn't call for us to label her subversive.

There is one more thing on the Foreign Policy Association. Not only is it endorsed by Republicans and Democrats, including Eisenhower, Nixon and Kennedy, it has a Catholic Bishop on its board of directors. The present director is Bishop Robert Dwyer of Reno, Nevada. He succeeds Bishop John J. Wright of Piltsburgh, a former director.

The fact that some leading Catholics endorse the Cardinal Mindmenty Foundation, doesn't give it the right to pillory the foreign policy Association of any other group. The Mindmenty Foundation's charges against the FPA have no legal substance. They are mostly invendo and half truths. The question I Foundation says it is, why is a Catholic al movements and motives. There is the ever present danger of the creation of a form of supermarket patriotism which furthers only extreme nationalism. While we must all love our country, we must also love our fellow man. This means seeing Mrs. Dean's interpretive writing may not be in him a person with a divine dignity and an eternal destiny. This means respecting his rights and his liberty. This means being very careful not to injured his reputation through leckless half-truths.

> I realize that this is an unpopular view. However, someone must speak out. Anti-Communists we must all be. But if we are Catholic, our anti-Communism must be Catholic. I suspect that much of our anti-Communism has a political rather than a religious motive,

The tragedy of all this is that it splits the Catholic community and the national community at a time when unity is imperative. There is no reason why Catholics can't work together in relation to the Communist menace. But some tactics will have to be changed. The most important change must be in diask is this: If the FPA is what the Mindszenty vorcing Catholic anti-Communism from politic-
