It's this easy to care for your furnace with modern, completely automatic

Gas Heat

Just set the thermostat--your work's done!

If you're still using an old-fashioned fuel to heat your home, you no doubt have worked hard this past winter to keep your home comfortable. With modern, completely automatic gas heat, your hardest chore will be rising from your easy chair to set the thermostat to the temperature most comfortable for you and your family.

Now's the time to switch to gas heat—during the spring heating season. You'll especially appreciate gas heat now because spring is the season of warm days and chilly nights and if you are using an old-fashioned fuel you must start a fire every night—to take the chill off the house—only to let it die out in the morning. Lot of work? You bet it is! And uneconomical, too! With dependable, completely automatic Gas Heat you need only to set the thermostat to the temperature desired, then sit back and relax in complete comfort. No fuel wasted either because you use only as much as you require to keep you and your family comfortable.

Don't put up with the inconvenience and expense of other fuels any longer. Convert to clean, economical Gas Heat now!

There are two ways you can do this. First, if your present furnace is in good working order, you can install a compact Gas conversion unit for as little as $1.70 a week. Your heating contractor can complete your installation in a few hours time. If your furnace has seen better days, although it may still be operating, you may need to install a new furnace. In either case your heating contractor will tell you the installation that will be the most economical.

Right now your heating contractor has more time and men available to give your new installation all the attention it deserves. So don't wait until Fall when the heating contractors are in their "rush season." Call him today! Enjoy all the comfort of completely automatic Gas Heat for the balance of this heating season. You'll be glad you did next summer.

And Gas Heat costs no more than other automatic fuels. It actually costs less when you consider all costs. Add up the cost of equipment, the cost of installing it, the cost of maintaining it, and the life expectancy of the unit, as well as the fuel costs for operating it. When all these costs are considered, Gas Heat saves you money.
