

N.D. Will Win Again

Last year Notre Dame suffered through the most calamitous Autumn in its spectacular football history. The 2-8 record was due primarily to a combination of injuries, inexperience, and inconsistency. As a side note it might be added here that 38 players were prevented from playing in at least one game—eight fullbacks were used at one time or another.

Coach Joe Kuharich was greeted by a Spring practice turnout of over 100 players, including many lettermen. These veterans add the all-important experience that is to be blended with the abilities and spirit of a horde of newcomers.

Quarterback, a troublesome spot last year, appears to be well-staffed. Daryle Lamonica, the late season regular, has been No. 1 all Spring. The big Californian has outstanding potential. With Norb Rascher and Clay Schulz, a defensive specialist, out most of the practice sessions with injuries, freshmen (soph's next Fall) have a chance to show their wares. Frank Budka (Pompano Beach, Florida) has been consistently effective as a passer and runner. Behind him is another newcomer, Bill Pfeiffer (Chicago).

COMPETITION for the halfback positions has been keen. Right half Ange Deberio is backed by Frost Paul Costa (235). Deberio was the leading ground-gainer last Fall and Costa has proved to be a fine runner. Frank Minik, Ed Rutkowski and Chuck O'Hara have shared the other position. George Sefcik, the team's punter, is playing second base for the Varsity nine this Spring. Talented rookies include Denny Phillips, Tom McDonald and speedy John Robinson.

Big Jim Snowden, a converted freshman end, has been giving Mike Lind and Bill Ahern a battle for the fullback slot. Joe Makowski add depth. Snowden is one of the best prospects the Irish have had in recent years. Veteran Les Traver, John Powers and Steve Kolski (215) have been the ranking ends. Powers is making a comeback after an early season injury. Dennis Murphy, Jim Sherlock, Byron Boulae and Max Burnell are returning lettermen. The most promising newcomers have been Tom Goberville (Chicago) and Jim Kelly (Clairton, Pa.).

A QUARTET of game-tested performers—Bob Hill, Joe Carollo, George Williams and Roger Wilke are the leading tackles. All four weigh in at 220 or better. Jack Cullen (San Francisco), Marty Olosky (Flint, Mich.) and Dan Reardon (Chicago) are freshmen candidates.

The guard positions will be well fortified again. Nick Buoniconti (210) and Norb Roy, team co-captains, have been standouts for two years. Mike DiPola, Frank Grace, and a pair of tough newcomers in Bob Lehmann (Louisville) and Phil Phil Kienast (Oconomowoc, Wis.) back up the starters.

Rugged linebacker Tom Heomovich, another casualty from 1960, and ex-tackle Ed Burke (230) have the inside track at center. Al Viola, a letterman, is

No. 3. Bill Hoerster, a mid-season regular, has missed practice because of injuries.

The feeling here is that the Irish will take a long stride back to football prominence come Fall.

Famed Picnic Grounds Also Become Day Camp

Corbett's Glen, a famed picnic area for 70 years is now in operation as a play ground for children and known as "Camp Hideaway."

Situated in Brighton, just off Linden Avenue, Corbett's Glen was sold in 1956 to Mr. and Mrs. Howard F. Meath, 39 Warwick Ave., who maintain the original picnic area and have added a Day Camp program for Rochester and vicinity youngsters.

Corbett's Glen still retains its name, but to many boys and girls of Monroe County it has become better known as "Camp Hideaway."

The Meaths said that Corbett's Glen with its shallow stream, picturesque waterfalls and islands coupled with its wooded hills and open play space make Camp Hideaway ideal for a well organized Day Camp Program.

CAMP HIDEAWAY is said to offer a variety of programs to meet the desires of boys and girls attending. Age groups of boys and girls range from five to 14 with the boys having their separate camp area and program.

Adult supervision and counseling is a key point in the successful programming of events at Camp Hideaway according to the Meaths. "From this comes fun, the desired result," they said.

Besides activities going into making a well rounded camp program, swimming is a daily activity and is given the greatest emphasis. Swimming is conducted in an attractive indoor swimming pool. Free transportation is provided all campers.

The camp site known as Corbett's Glen has been the scene of many thousands of family, industrial, civic, church and fraternal picnics.

ORIGINALLY the Glen was owned by Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Corbett, who in addition to the picnic area conducted one of the area's largest truck farms. On the death of Mr. Corbett, his son Charles P. Corbett operated the farm and an enlarged picnic area. The Corbetts continued serving picnickers even after Mr. Corbett's death and the termination of farm activities.

In this year marking the Glen's 70th anniversary as an outing area, the original natural beauty is still present.

Information concerning Camp Hideaway at Corbett's may be had by calling FA 8-5658 or HU 2-8824.
