Doctors Told

Federal Funds Needed

New York—(RNS)—Rep. John E. Fogarty (D-R.I.) told the National Federation of Catholic Physicians Guilds here that increased federal aid seems to be the answer in defraying the current high cost of medical and dental education.

Catholic Physicians Meet

Warning that America's future supply of doctors and dentists is being seriously threatened by the prohibitive cost of long years of schooling, the Congressman urged that more scholarships be given to competent applicants and that federal funds be allocated to replace deteriorating buildings and equipment in medical and dental schools.

His remarks came in a keynote address here before the federation's Century Dinner marking the incorporation of the national group's 100th member guild in Rochester, Minn. The NFPCG was founded in 1932 by a group of Catholic doctors in Brooklyn, N.Y.

"Today in the U.S.," Rep. Fogarty said, "the choice of a career is largely conditioned by the applicant's financial background. The average annual tuition and maintenance cost... is keeping many hundreds of qualified young people out of the nation's medical and dental schools."

"The result," he added, "is a down-grading in the quality of graduates from such institutions in recent years."

Observing that the trend is towards stepped-up federal support to bolster state and local government aid to these professional schools, the Rhode Island Democrat noted that federal aid increased from a small seven per cent in the field of medical education and research in 1940 to about 53 per cent last year.

Rep. Fogarty said he failed to understand why the American Medical Association opposed federal financial aid in both education and research.

"Far from discouraging private and local initiative," he stated, "the upsurge in federal support has encouraged greater efforts from these groups. During the past 20 years non-federal aid has risen from $140 million to $350 million. While the rate of federal support has outstripped local and private efforts, there has been a definite upward trend there also."

The Congressman called upon members of the federation "to serve as the major core of the nucleus of the movement with hope that federal aid would be of a more flexible nature, to support President Kennedy's program for improving health."

His plea for more federal aid was backed up in a welcome address at the dinner by Archbishop Thomas A. Boland of Newark, N.J. The prelate noted that private institutions had to rely heavily upon endowments for scholarships and other medical and dental school expenses. He also expressed the hope that federal aid would be of a more flexible nature, to support President Kennedy's applied where the need was the greatest.

Nuns' Prayers Taxed

Don't Qualify As Charity

London—(RNS)—Orders of contemplative nuns, both Roman Catholic and Anglican, have been refused tax exemptions normally accorded religious and charitable organizations in a decision by the government here. According to the ruling, contemplative nuns do not qualify as charitable organizations since unlike "active" congregations, they do not teach, provide nursing service, or assist the poor. Opponents of the government's stand, noting that contemplative nuns spend their lives praying for mankind, say that a life of prayer contributes to the advancement of religion, sufficient ground for recognition as a charity.

THE GOVERNMENT made one concession when the problem was discussed before the House of Commons. It gave local authorities, who levy and collect the taxes, discretionary power to grant partial relief from such payments. This will come about in some parts of England, but there will be no uniform procedure and in some areas reductions will be refused.

Some convents will suffer in rural districts where the authorities, hard-pressed for revenue, will not be easily persuaded to reduce tax payments.

Davenport Diocese To Aid Mexico Village

Davenport—(NC)—Nestled high in the mountains east of Mexico City is Huayacocotla, a village in need of spiritual, economic and agricultural help.

Lord Iddesleigh, a Catholic peer, pointed out another phase of the problem in an address before the House of Lords. "Some of them are in districts of the United Kingdom where sectarian feeling run very high, and where they will have no chance whatever of obtaining relief from local authorities."

The Papal Volunteers for Latin America program of the Davenport diocese hopes to make that aid available. Father Louis M. Colonnese, diocesan Papal Volunteer representative, announced that the Diocese of Tulancingo, which includes Huayacocotla, will be the special area of concentration for the Davenport program.

Taxes will cut sharply into the little revenue such convents receive, many of which are now in "perilous" financial position. If it proves to be the case that in modern economic conditions such convents cannot continue to exist, I can only say, "Lord Iddesleigh told the House, that we shall lose a part of ourselves, a part of our history."

HE ALSO announced that the first volunteer from the diocese, 23-year-old Hawaiian-born Laureta Andaya, will leave in late August for Huayacocotla. There she will teach bookkeeping and secretarial skills necessary for the operation of a credit union and cooperative.

Future volunteers will include a credit union advisor and an agricultural specialist trained to help the community back on its feet.

Peace Pilgrimage Nuremberg—(RNS)—More than 5,000 West German Roman Catholics from Bavaria participated in the annual peace pilgrimage to the Marian shrine Iddesleigh told the House, that we shall lose a part of ourselves, a part of our history.

U.S. Jesuits Plan Africa Mission

Washington—(NC)—Father Neil G. McCluskey, S.J., widely known educator and writer, will lead the first American Jesuit missionary effort in Africa.

Father McCluskey, dean of education at Gonzaga University, Spokane, Washington, and associate editor of America magazine, will leave in October for Lusaka, Northern Rhodesia, to establish an institute on social and economic studies at a university being opened by the government.

Father McCluskey, author of the book, "Catholic Viewpoint on Education," said during a visit here that the U.S. Jesuits will staff a minor seminary in Broken Hill, Northern Rhodesia. Cuban example of "attacks against religion, particularly the Catholic religion, as the opium of the people."

The document published by the newspaper states that "the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics will not haggle over means of support, including millions of dollars, for the conquest of Latin America."

El Tiempo in its front-page story (June 19) gave no indication as to how it acquired the document in question. It said the instructions promised that a veritable army of communists workers, experts and specialists would come to Latin America from this July to September at the invitation of local trade union and other groups. In addition to their work as communists agents, the document said, the visiting workers would be charged with selecting native candidates for visits to Russia and Czechoslovakia.

It quotes the party directive as calling on agitators throughout Latin America to follow the Cuban example of "attacks against religion, particularly the Catholic religion, as the opium of the people."

The document published by the newspaper states that "the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics will not haggle over means of support, including millions of dollars, for the conquest of Latin America."

El Tiempo, Bogota liberal daily which has the largest circulation in the country, said the instructions were passed on at the May meeting of the Central Committee of the Communist party of the U.S.S.R.

THE MAIN GOAL of the instructions, according to El Tiempo, is to discredit the Catholic Church and the clergy in particular.

They include Father Gerard Sloyan, head of the religious education department, the Catholic University of America; Mary Perkins Ryan, author and lecturer; Father Godfrey Dikman, O.S.B., editor of Worship magazine; Father H. A. Reinhold, author of Pittsburgh; Msgr. Martin B. Hellriegel of St. Louis; and Father Robert W. Howda, of the Catholic University of America, columnist for the National Catholic Welfare Conference Feature Service.

The Vatican Radio later reminded listeners that the encyclical would mark the 70th anniversary of Pope Leo XIII's celebrated encyclical, Rerum Novarum (On the Condition of the Working Classes), which it described as the Church's "basic document on social and industrial problems."

Chicago—(NC)—Eighty-five inmates of the Illinois State Prison at Joliet were confirmed by Bishop Martin D. McNamara of Joliet in the prison chapel.

Several prisoners who already have been confirmed acted as sponsors for the group, about half of whom are converts. This is the tenth year Bishop McNamara has confirmed at the institution.

Smear Church, First Step In Communist Takeover

Bogota—(NC)—Colombia's leading newspaper has published a detailed story on what it says is the Soviet Communist party's final instruction for the conquest of Latin America.

El Tiempo, Bogota liberal daily which has the largest circulation in the country, said the instructions were passed on at the May meeting of the Central Committee of the Communist party of the U.S.S.R.
