Hill Design Combines Forum Ideas

Results of the combined thinking of the delegates to the Housing Forum, co-sponsored by Caldwell & Cook and Better Homes & Gardens magazine can be seen Sunday, Oct. 15, from 1 p.m. to 9 p.m. at 10 Stuyvesant Ave. in Knickerbocker Hill, Pittsford.

THIS UNUSUAL house is a split-level with a unique upper level area. Four bedrooms are located on this level.

One of the bedrooms forms a part of an interesting "private unit" or suite, for the home owners. This suite is walled off from the other three bedrooms and bath.

It consists of the master bedroom, with a bath, dressing room and a retreat (or den) all up three steps from the master bedroom.

On the first floor, the living room, with fireplace, faces the front of the home. The dining room is off the living room and the kitchen, which has built-in appliances, including an "island" with built-in electric stove.

The kitchen and dinette are the center rooms in the rear area. A family room, which opens out to a patio through sliding glass doors, occupies the corner of the house.

A two-car garage, powder room and foyer make up the other parts of the main floor.

The 1961 Forum House features traditional architecture, not having the look of a conventional split level. The brick veneer, wood paneling and claboard exterior lend a look of graciousness.

Interior decorations at the Forum House were done by "Liz Sherman, of Baton Rouge, La. This is the second Forum House built by Caldwell & Cook in their Knickerbocker Hill development. The first is located at 24 Saxony Rd. there.

Plans are underway to sponsor the third annual Rochester Housing Forum later next year.
