

Cardinal At Marine Base

Quantico — (NC) — Francis Cardinal Spellman discussed the itinerary of his 11th consecutive Christmas visit to members of the U.S. armed forces overseas.

GOD LOVE YOU!

By MOST REV. FULTON J. SHEEN

There are three ways of dealing with underdeveloped countries. The American Foreign Aid Policy generally believes in working from the top down — from government officials to hungry stomachs. The Communists believe in working from the bottom up — from hungry stomachs to the overthrow of governments. Our missionaries work from the outside to the inside; they feed the hungry and then elevate their souls to self-determination of their natural destinies.

There are also several philosophies of giving to the underdeveloped people of the world. The American policy is economic aid; the Soviet policy is economic aid with psychological indoctrination in order to produce world imperialism. What a change would come over the world if all United States foreign aid to underdeveloped countries were given through Catholic and Protestant missionaries instead of through politicians. These missionaries live with the people, speak their language, share their poverty, love them unto death and bring to them the only real antidote there is to Communism — a Christ-like heart that would die for virtue and truth rather than be a slave to the Anti-Christ of Communism.

When the Soviets infiltrate a country and establish a Communist regime by force, the United States is then bound to protest or act or fight to maintain the status quo. This immediately put us on the side of reaction. The missionaries, to the contrary, believe in educating native clergy and a native elite to eventually reform government according to principles of justice and order.

The more we study Communist techniques, the more we see the value of The Society for the Propagation of the Faith. Khrushchev is like a man with a hose who is sprinkling a garden. He shoots troubled water on the streets of Korea, then on the flower gardens of Formosa, then on the dry land of Jordan, driving the Western world crazy with his diversionary tactics. The Society for the Propagation of the Faith has a world plan, too — to serve all peoples all over the world. But by sending all aims to a central source — the Holy Father — it eliminates diversionary or spasmodic or unequal giving, as when each decides for himself where his aims will go.

There are 569 religious communities in the Church. Many of these are on the Missions. For Americans to aid only American missionaries, the French to aid only French and the Germans to aid only German missionaries is to destroy the world plan. The Holy Father knows better than any one of us where the needs are — he and the Church alone have a world plan. It is an honor to fit into it, as you do when you contribute to The Society for the Propagation of the Faith.

GOD LOVE YOU to a Grateful Sailor for $25 "Please accept this small offering for the Missions in thanksgiving for a recent advance in rating." . . . to Anonymous for $5 "In thanksgiving to St. Bathilda for a favor received." . . . to Mrs. G. D. for $50 "I am an eighty-six-year-old mother, grandmother and great grandmother to a family of forty-six, and my heart aches for helpless babes."

The ten letters of GOD LOVE YOU spell out a decade of the Rosary as they encircle the medal originated by Bishop Sheen to honor the Madonna of the World. With your request and a corresponding offering, you may order a GOD LOVE YOU medal in any one of the following styles:

- $ 2 small sterling silver

The Military Vicar of the U.S. Armed Forces and Archbishop of New York said: "I expect to offer Mass on Christmas day in Berlin."

The Cardinal came here Sunday, Nov. 5, for a religious observance of the 186th anniversary of the founding of the U.S. Marine Corps. On his first visit to this Marine post, the Cardinal was the guest of Gen. Edward Smedeker, post commandant, who arranged the program of Catholic, Protestant, Jewish and Orthodox religious observances of the anniversary.

The Cardinal's visit to Quantico was arranged by Rev. Leo Ward of the Rochester Diocese who is chaplain at the Marine Base. Rev. Donald Mulcahy and Rev. William Charbonneau of Rochester attended the Marine anniversary Mass.

Cardinal Spellman offered Pontifical Mass in the post chapel and blessed four of 16 etched glass windows, each of which depicts a scene from Marine Corps history integrated with a religious motif.

Following the Mass and blessing of the windows, the Cardinal spoke briefly, expressing his long admiration for the Marine Corps and the way its members have upheld its ideals. Following the services the Cardinal greeted individually each of the 700 persons who attended the services.

Supreme Court Justice William J. Brennan, Jr., was principal speaker at a luncheon for the Catholic participants in the celebration. The jurist said that with all the tensions prevailing in the world today, "we find there is no brave, new world to which we can escape." He said that the American Revolution has been the father of all freedom-inspired revolutions which have occurred since that time and which still happen today. He emphasized that freedom is the birthright of democracy and advocated a need for more "freedom at home today."

Shirt Off His Back

Wakayama — (NC) — During the local Japanese community chest campaign, the Catholic Church here cooperated by carrying a poster on its bulletin board encouraging generosity to the poor and distressed.

Father Keith Gorman, S.S.C., gave the campaign a little push of his own by adding the Scriptural quotation, "He that hath two coats, let him give to him that hath none."

"This apparently made a profound impression," noted the Columbian missionary. "One gentleman read the notice, then removed his shirt, folded it neatly and carefully laid it on the floor beneath the poster."

Latin America

Landowners Block Church Teaching

Boston — (RNS) — The Catholic Church in Latin America may lose a vast number of nominal members in the near future because of its ideological struggles with hostile social forces, according to a Brazilian priest-educator.

Msgr. Luciano Duarte, of the Aracaju archdiocese in Brazil, was interviewed here while on a study tour of American educational institutions under a U.S. State Department grant. He is the director of Faculdade Catolica de Filosofia, an institute for training lay teachers of secondary schools.

He stressed that an increasing emphasis on the Church's social teachings would cause some "lukewarm" and so-called nominal Catholics to leave the faith but it would result in more fervent adherents.

Msgr. Duarte referred to the promulgation and implementation of the papal encyclical, Mater et Magistra, calling for revitalization of the social structure and particularly for land reforms in under-privileged areas.

The priest-educator observed that some Latin Americans find such social teaching to be "a hard saying" and prefer to "walk away" from the Church rather than surrender unjustly held positions.

"We are losing and will continue to lose vast numbers of the nominally Catholic," the priest said, "but while the quantity may shrink, the quality seems to improve."

He noted that a large number of Latin American bishops have committed themselves "strongly and definitely" to

He noted that the state has 15 religious priests in a population of 1,800,000. Some 92 per cent of the population has been baptized and is described as "nominally Catholic." Only some 40 per cent has received First Holy Communion and only 15 per cent practices the sacraments in a regular way, according to Msgr. Duarte.

The priest predicted that social agitation and ideological struggles will "sift the wheat from the chaff" and differentiate those who are steadfast in the faith and those who prefer "old ways" to the social message of the Church.

Observing that there is some idea of progress and a wish for a better life among the poorer classes of Brazil, Msgr. Duarte declared:

"The Church understands," he said, "it must be preoccupied with the essential problems of the Church."

New Delhi Observers

New Delhi — (RNS) — Fathers Ivan Exross and Joseph Edamaram, S.J., the two Indian priests named as official Vatican observers to the Third Assembly of the World Council of Churches here, Nov. 18-Dec. 6, come from two distant ends of the Indian subcontinent.

Holders of graduate degrees in theology, both priests have written extensively in English and in Indian tongues. Father Exross uses Hindi, his mother tongue, and is in close touch with Hindi writers.

Father Edamaram, of Calicut, head of the Jesuit vice-province of Kerala in southern India, has inherited the rich tradition of his Malabar Brahmin grandfather, a convert to Catholicism, and his father, both noted Sanskrit and Malayalam scholars.

Father Exross, chancellor of the Allahabad Diocese in northern India, also is director of the diocesan Society for the Propagation of the Faith and diocesan parish school inspector. He has lectured extensively in the U.S., Canada and Belgium and was a chaplain in the Royal Air Force during World War II.

Three other Vatican observers, an American, a French and a Dutch priest, also will attend the Assembly of the World Council, which embraces 176 Protestant and Eastern Orthodox bodies in more than 50 countries.

'Highest Regard'

Durban — (NC) — The Catholic Archbishop of Durban hailed the choice of African native leader Albert Luthuli as recipient of the Nobel Peace Prize and said Luthuli's approach is Christian and conciliatory.

"I am delighted that he has won this honor," said Archbishop Denis E. Hurley, O.M.I., who is Natal chairman of the Institute of Race Relations. "I know Mr. Luthuli personally and have the highest regard and affection for him."

The Nobel Peace Prize Committee in Oslo announced (Oct. 23) the award of the 1960 Peace Prize to Luthuli at the same time it awarded the 1961 Peace Prize to the late United Nations Sec. Gen. Dag Hammarskjold. Luthuli, 61-year old Zulu tribal chief who was for many years head of the now-banned African National Congress, was honored for his non-violent campaign against South Africa's racial segregation policies.
