Thomas Aquinas Healy
Top Student At Aquinas

To the surprise of no one connected with Aquinas Institute Thomas Aquinas Healy walked off with top honors in the first quarterly examinations just completed at the Catholic boys' school.

EARNING AN average of 98.40% to lead the 1365 students at the Basilian Fathers' school was not just a stroke of good luck for young Healy.

Hours of concentrated study, sacrifices of favorite television programs and sports activities, and "tons" of homework faithfully completed each day was the price he paid for the singular honor. (Some claim his name helped to pay off not a little.

He reached the zenith in three of his subjects, obtaining 100% in Religion, French and mathematics. Incidentally, the latter is 12th grade experimental math, a college level subject.

The clever, aggressive Healy has not confined his accomplishments only to scholastic endeavors. Besides his academic and leadership qualities, Healy has found time to act as his school's standard bearer, serve as vice-prefect of the Sodality and take an active part in intramural sports and the school's club program.

A member of Holy Rosary parish, Healy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Brian Mannion of Lake View Pk. and the grandson of Raymond F. Healy, prominent Catholic layman.

Although silent on his choice of college for next year, several colleges have been impressed by his record and are expected to offer him attractive scholarships.
