

Plans Five High Schools
Seattle — (NC) — Five new Catholic high schools will be built in the Seattle archdiocese within the next ten years, Archbishop Thomas A. Connolly of Seattle has announced. The first school will be completed in South Seattle by September, 1964. The other four will be built in South Tacoma, Bellevue, North King County (the county in which Seattle is located) and Vancouver.

East High Next For McQuaid Five

By JESS HEWITT
McQuaid Jesuit High, a 61-46 loser to Fordham Prep of New York City in its last outing, will be out to break a two-game slump when it plays host to East High this Friday, Jan. 5.

THE KNIGHTS handled East without difficulty in their two meetings last year, but the Ontals are currently riding high with new coach Mauro Panag and top point man Wally Jaggart, and figure to be a tough opponent.

McQuaid coach George Monagan, seeking better scoring balance and rebounding, will likely experiment with three juniors—Gerry McCall, Joe Genier and Dick Spies—to go with seniors Tony Criscuolo and Frank Zona. McCabe, at 6-4, will be the inside man with Criscuolo, while Genier and Spies will work with Zona outside.

Against Fordham Prep, one of New York's finest scholastic clubs, the Knights had another sub-par shooting night (19 out of 33) while Tom Kelly of the visitors was wrecking them with a 29-point spurge. Telly's 12 points got his mates off and running toward a 33-21 half-time edge and, when McQuaid threatened to get back into the game early in the fourth period, he ran wild as Fordham
