Head of House Still at Home

Lima, Peru — "Should I bring along the heads of the dead?" asked the lady who had just arranged to have a Mass offered for her grandparents, Francisco and Mariana.

It was a strange request, but Father Gerald Stanley, Irish Volunteer missionary working with the Columban Fathers here took it in his stride.

"Where are they?" he asked, appearing nonchalant.

"Why, at home, of course."

Further questioning revealed that the good lady's husband had abandoned her. Her own people sent her the treasured relics of Francisco and Mariana — their skulls. The reason? "Your husband has left you — keep these so you won't be alone in the house."

Federal Aid To Schools

'Year of Crisis' Ahead

Wilmington — (NC) — A Catholic legal expert said here that 1963 may be a "year of crisis" in the dispute over federal aid to education.

William B. Ball, executive director and counsel of the Pennsylvania Catholic Welfare Committee, said that in the coming year "all the opposing forces could come together to work out some type of bill."

BALL ARGUED that opposition to federal aid to church schools is based on a "distortion" of the principle of Church-State separation by "extremists."

"We now have a powerful body of opinion which seeks to secularize all phases of public life in this country," he said (Nov. 13) in a lecture sponsored by the Catholic Educational Guild of the Wilmington diocese.

THE ISSUE of aid to church schools "is not a question of legality but a question of policy," he declared. He added that opponents of such aid had made "a mountain of argument" out of "a mole-hill of constitutionality."

Noting instances of public aid to church schools which have involved no challenges on constitutional grounds, he said there has been "no Catholic push" for federal aid.

Rather, he said, the Catholic position has been that if a massive federal aid program is enacted, church schools should be included in it.

Ball said Catholic schools enroll one-seventh of the nation's students and represent a sav-seventh of our educational outlays of between two and three billion dollars to taxpayers.

"It makes no sense to say we're going to exclude one-third of our educational outlays to education," he said.

THE FIRST DAY of school signals the beginning of a new period of growing-up. New people! New work! New activities! How can you help keep your family feeling healthy during these important months which lie ahead?

Children (and their parents) can help keep themselves feeling fit by following a regular program of proper sleep, exercise, and good habits of eating. Good nutrition includes proper vitamins—every day. If keeping up with fall activities causes members of your family to neglect or miss nutritionally-sound meals, they could become victims of vitamin deficiency.

To help protect your family and yourself from vitamin deficiency, get VIGRAN!... multi-vitamins in a form for each member of your family... capsules, liquid, chewable tablets, or tablets with minerals added.
