Haiti Deports Three Clerics

Santo Domingo — (RNS) — French-born Bishop Paul Sanson Jean Marie Robert of Les Gonaives, Haiti, who was expelled from his See early in 1961 in the wake of growing tension between the Catholic Church and the government of the predominantly Negro Catholic republic, has now been deported from the country, along with three other French-born priests.

The pillaging charge made against Bishop Robert apparently refers to the destruction of a voodoo temple and voodoo charms. Voodooism, imported by slaves from Africa, retains a strong influence in Haiti, and reportedly is looked upon with favor by President Duvalier, who is a doctor of ethnology. He opposed a campaign inaugurated by the Catholic Church in 1941 to wipe out voodoo as a folk religion.

In its statement, the Foreign Ministry declared that Haitians, after taking a pledge rejecting voodoo, were urged by the Church at that time to destroy their "houfours."

In the photo Father Jude Taran, S.A., vested in the Byzantine Rite vestments explains to Father Otto J. Vogt and James E. Casey, Holy Name president, the use of the spoon for distribution of Holy Communion under both species and how the lance is used to pierce the bread at the time of Consecration, symbolic of the lance that pierced the Heart of Our Lord on the Cross. The footed paten is shown resting on the decorated altar cloth in which the relics of the Saints are sewn, thus taking the place of the altar stone as used in the Latin Rite.

Eastern Rite Mass Offered In English

Fr. Jude Taran, S.A. of the staff of St. John's Seminary, Montour Falls, celebrated Byzantine Liturgy (Mass) in English, at St. Patrick's Church, Elmira, Wednesday, Dec. 5. Following the Mass there was a dinner in the parish hall for the Holy Name Society, prepared by the members of the Rosary Society. Father Jude spoke after the supper on the "Ecumenical Council and the Orthodox Church."

MASS WAS celebrated in English in accord with permission granted by Byzantine Catholics by Pope John XXIII in June, 1950. Father Jude uses the vernacular in his Liturgy, customary in the Pittsburgh Diocese from whom he has faculties.

In his talk following the supper, Father Jude spoke on several aspects of the Council in reference to Orthodox Churches, in particular of the presence of several Orthodox delegates, and yet, of the absence of delegates of the majority of Orthodox Churches. He spoke of the discussion in Rome concerning unity with the Churches of the East, citing several of the recommendations of the Council Fathers:

1. Of the importance of prayer for the reunion of East and West.
2. Of the many bonds held in common by Eastern and Western: valid Priesthood and Sacraments, most articles of belief, strong devotion to the Blessed Virgin.

Father Jude stressed the importance of a respectful understanding of the Churches of the East and their traditions, which have evolved in a different historical and cultural atmosphere. To overcome this obstacle, Fr. Jude pointed out, education and familiarity with our separated Brothers of the East are of great importance. 900 years have separated us, and with the lapse of time many new expressions of piety proper to the regions and people have evolved.

These must be respected as genuine expressions of piety, he said. Though there will probably be no vast reunion of the Churches at the Council, "the ground work has been laid and we should pray and work for its fulfillment."

Meany, S.J., Prefect of Discipline.
