

Rochester Missioner at Arctic Outpost

Here is a picture-story from the land of the North Pole. Father Bernard Brown, Oblate missioner in Canada's Northwest Territories above the Arctic Circle, is architect, carpenter, doctor and companion as well as pastor to his Indian parishioners. The Rochester priest with four teenage lads from the city built a new chapel in the bleak Arctic during the past year. The story was published in in-statements in this paper earlier this year and here is the photographic record just received from Our Lady of the Snows Mission, Colville Lake. Photos show Frank Wroth working on chapel with Father Brown and construction progress which climaxes with Christmas Midnight Mass. Prior to the chapel's construction, Mass was offered in a tent.
