is a myth, and that only the ignorant and culturally deprived are believers.

Their feeling was spelled out last February by a leacting Soviet writer, Konstantin Simonov, who wrote: "When I meet persons who are edu-cated, cultured, evolved, in ecclesiastical grab, I cannot convince myself that the y truly believe in God, even though I have no reason to think them persons of dupli-city and dishonesty ... My head simply refuses to understand how a young man who lives in this our world carenot but be an atheist."

Because of this, the Christian from abroad who goes to his brothers in Christ to worship with them becomes true witness. In some cases their witness can have a profound effect.

One instance stemmed from the state visit of Ethiopia's Emperor Halle Sciassie to Czechoslovakia in the fall of 1981. In the course of the visit, the Emperor — himself a member of the separated Ethiopian Church — took a gift to 600-year-old Catholic shrine of the Blessed Virgin. Svata Hora, at Pribram, about 35 miles southwest of Prague. that by this gesture, he saved the anicent pilgrimage center from being closed and secular ized by the regime.

The new opening of their country to tourists from the Well is very welcome to the Catholics of Crechoslovakia. They see it bound to bring that about some relatation in their rigorously controlled live a Eventually, they hope, it will spell a return to at least and much religious freedom as exists in neighboring Poland.
