'The Priest and The Politician'

The clash between Louisiana political boss Leander Perez (left) and Father Christopher Schneider, O.F.M., who attempted to integrate a parochial school in Buras, La. last year will be reviewed Sept. 18 over CBS Reports, a weekly series carried on the CBS-TV network. The school, Our Lady of Good Harbor, was damaged by an explosion recently, a few days before it was to reopen for the fall. The show, titled "The Priest and the Politician," will explore Father Schneider's duel with Mr. Perez, an avowed segregationist who was excommunicated by Archbishop Joseph F. Rummel of New Orleans for his opposition to parochial school desegregation. (RNS Photo)

Talk It Over

School

By ANNE CULKIN

Dear Miss Culkin:

This week I have to return to school and I am sick just thinking about it because I have to repeat my freshman year. All my friends will be sophomores and I don't known any of the freshmen. The subject that I can't get is Latin.

I spent so much time studying it again last year that I didn't give enough time to subjects that come easy to me, so I failed history and algebra too. I want to transfer schools but my mother and father said they won't let me do it. In the school where I am going, you have to take Latin in your freshman and sophomore years.

I know I will never learn it. Do you think I should be allowed to go to another school? I'm going to be so ashamed that first day of school I think I will die. Please write and tell me what I should do?

Ashamed

Dear Ashamed:

You have nothing to be ashamed about! Only if you didn't give your best would you have reason to feel the way you do. Do remember that some of the smartest and most successful people found some subjects so difficult that they, too, had to repeat them. If you put forth the same effort next year as you did last year, that troublesome Latin may not prove so difficult.

If it does, speak to your teacher and parents concerning private tutoring. Freshman Latin is important because it is during this time that you make good foundation which makes sophomore [illegible] much easier, as it [illegible] mostly of translating.

As for friends, you will find them wherever people are. The strong friendships made during freshman year can be retained, but do make friends with the girls in your new class. The difference in age, one year, is hardly any difference at all.

Dear Miss Culkin:

What do you think of young girls having their ears pierced? I have a girlfriend whose mother pierced hers, and she said it didn't hurt too much. If I don't have them pierced, do you think a girl of fourteen is too young to wear regular earrings like other women?

Barbara

Dear Barbara:

Don't have anyone's mother pierce your ears! If your own mother approves of you having it done, then only a doctor should do it. Fewer girls today have their ears pierced than did a generation ago. There is no reason unless you feel a strong reason for doing it. Attractive earrings worn by older girls become not too attractive when worn by a fourteen-year-old girl.

Dear Miss Culkin:

My father died three years ago and two months ago my mother remarried. I never know how to introduce her to my friends any more. I asked her and she said she is not sure and to write you.

Larry

Dear Larry:

The introduction should be "This is my mother, Mrs. ——(new name)——." While it is true we never introduce our parents as Mr. and Mrs. when their name is the same as ours, a stepparent or parent who has remarried and has a different name than ours should be referred to as Mr. or Mrs. with the new name.

Dear Miss Culkin:

Last week we purchased for our home the newest version of Amy Vanderbilt's book of etiquette. I was appalled to read that she stated "The bikini is for perfect figures only and for the very young." This past summer we spent over a month on the West Coast.

While there I was not only appalled but repulsed by the number of women who wore this type of swim suit. Over and over again I pointed out to my 14-year-old daughter how awful it was, and that never would it become acceptable in this country. Then to my dismay I read where Miss Vanderbilt approves. I am writing to you because I am most anxious to learn of your reaction to her statement.

Shocked

Dear Shocked:

Admittedly I have not read the quote "[illegible] bikini is for the perfect figures and for the very young" until your letter was received. My reaction? It is regrettable that Miss Vanderbilt ever included the statement in a book that acts as a guide to proper decorum for thousands of persons living in a nation that calls itself CHRISTIAN.

But, please God, the MORE IMPORTANT BOOK written over two thousand years ago and still more modern than tomorrow's newspaper will continue to guide those who recognize modesty as a virtue that governs an individual's choice of dress.

Dear Miss Culkin:

This seems like a silly question, but it is one that baffles me. If pickles and olives are served and there is a pickle fork on the dish, how can you use it gracefully? Pickles are not so hard to manage, but the olives are impossible.

Serious

Dear Serious:

Despite the fact that a pickle fork is provided, it is not improper to use your fingers to pick up both the olives and pickles.

Dear Miss Culkin:

Will you please settle my mind for once and for all. College girls never seem to be certain of the answers to the following: 1) If you invite a boy to a dance at your college and he has to travel over 200 miles, does he pay for his [illegible] expenses and also for a hotel? 2) When a boy invites you to his college for a college weekend does he pay the expenses or does the girl pay?

College Junior

Dear College Junior:

1) A young man pays his own expenses to and from the college. In the event that it is necessary for him to remain overnight at a hotel, he, too, assumes this expense.

2) A young woman invited to a college weekend is responsible for her own travel expense. If the boy has arranged for her to stay on campus or in a private home, approved by school administration, he most always pays for the overnight accommodation. As a precaution to avoid any possible criticism a great number of young women prefer to pay their own hotel bills.

Disc Notes

From Paul Contestable

A deluxe two-pocket album of for Me[illegible] he reads and The Best of Judy Garland has [illegible]ongs from the movie been released on the [illegible]cluded besides the title song label. Containing [illegible]her are A Home in the Meadow, great performa[illegible] from the What Was Your Name in the wistful Dorothy discover- States, the stirring Shenandoah, the land of Oz with Over Walt For the Hoe-Down, End-the Rainbow to the charming less Prairie, Lure of the Little You'll Never Walk Alone, the Voices, Nine Hundred Miles album is a showcase of fine From Home and Raise a Ruckus music sung by a fine artist. Tonight. Excellently done and a novel presentation of some fine music. A must for anyone who has seen How the West Was Won, and a wonderful addition to any record library.

Miss Garland is joined by Gene Kelly in two pleasing numbers, For Me And My Gal and When You Were a Tulip and by the Merry Macs in a topnotch rendition of On the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe. Many other numbers closely associated with Miss Garland down through the years are included in the album such as The Trolley Song, You Made Me Love You, I'm Always Chasing Rainbows, and Meet Me In St. Louis, Louis.

Her distinctive styling is evident throughout the two records in tunes like the wistful But Not For Me and I'm Nobody's Baby, to the light and pleasing Zing! Went the Strings of My Heart. A total of [illegible] are contained on the two records, [illegible] a classic when done by Miss Garland. A fine record from beginning to end. A prized addition to any record library.

Varying somewhat from the usual sound track recordings that appear along with a new movie, Colpix Records has released an album Burgess Meredith Sings the Songs From How the West Was Won. Bright banjo backing and an excellent male chorus provide the setting for [illegible]ayable background.

Rhythm Antics by Ethel Smith at the organ is a new release on the Decca label. Miss Smith's organ mastery is presented with an impressive background of provocative percussion. Some of the best loved standards are presented including By the Light of the Silvery Moon, It Ain't Necessarily So, and What is This Thing Called Love. Such varied instruments as an African squeeze [illegible] and Japanese bell [illegible] vari-ous pitches provide an unusual but enjoyable background.

Columbia Banking Largest In State
