

Baptist Colleges Seek Aid

Washington (NC) — The heads of two Baptist colleges held a conference here today to seek federal construction help under the new college aid program despite past stands against such assistance.

Walmer K. Hicks of Kalamazoo College, an 840-student educational school in Michigan, told the meeting of the Council of Protestant Colleges and Universities his board of trustees had approved the move.

"Our decision," he said, "was based on the reasoning that if you can't beat them, join them."

J. Ollie Edmund of Stetson University, a 1,971-student Southern Baptist school with campuses in both Deland and Petersburg, Fla., said "we are going to move rapidly at Stetson to get loans" from the government.

"I would hate for us," he said, "to stand by and see a great procession for education move by and then for us to say that we won the battle for a principle (Church-State separation), but lost it for education."

The new federal program offers either modest outright grants or larger repayable loans to help finance a portion of the construction costs of non-religious academic facilities. The priority for funds allocated to each state is determined by a state commission representing higher education.

While Father James A. Foley, O.S.B., pastor, was watching firemen battle the flames which destroyed the sanctuary and altar, a messenger boy handed him a telegram. It was a telegram of condolence from the local Council of Churches (Protestant).

Next day use of the Temple B'nai Israel for Sunday Masses was offered Father Foley and another message of sympathy came from a Methodist pastor. The fire damage was covered by insurance, but three persons stopped by St. Edward's rectory and insisted on making donations.

One was a Negro woman who gave Father Foley $100 and said: "Now I'm broke, Father, but I always felt better when I'm broke."

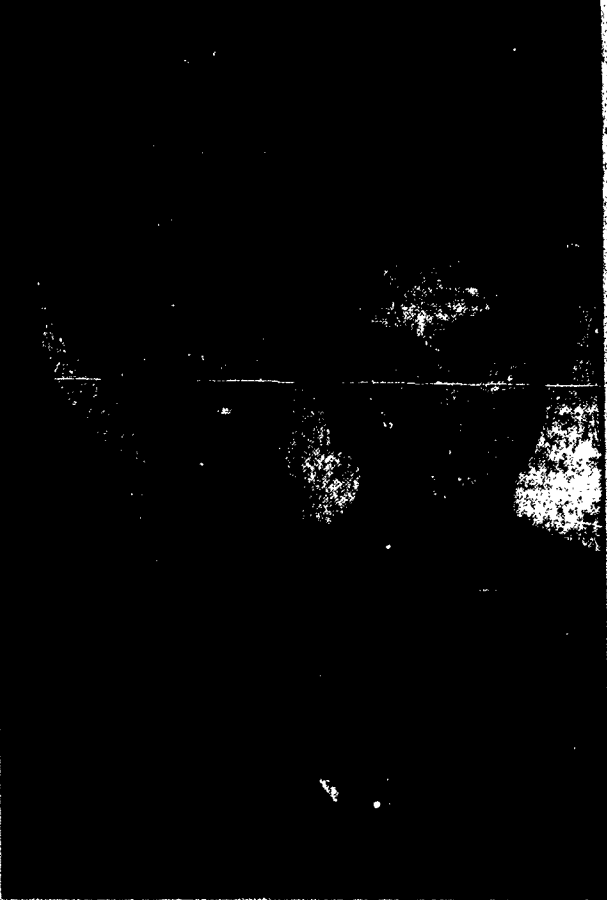

Father Foley said until repairs are completed Masses and other services will be held in the school gymnasium.

The visits were originally sponsored by Caritas, a Catholic interracial group here. They are now conducted under broader auspices with the local community Relations Board coordinating the effort.

Barling, Ark. — (NC) — Father Bob Mitchell, O.S.B., was conducting a children's catechism class at St. Mary's mission here. He asked what gifts the Wise Men gave the Christ Child. One youngster replied: "Gold, myrrh and Frankenstein."

Golden Jubilarians

A Mass to mark the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Mater of Penfield, will be offered Saturday, Feb. 15, in Holy Trinity Church Webster. Mr. and Mrs. Mater were married in 1914 in this same church. A dinner for the immediate family will be held at Sweet's Farm, followed by a reception given by their children. Mr. and Mrs. Mater have four sons, three daughters and 25 grandchildren.

'Little Me', Sid Caesar Slated At Auditorium

One of the biggest musical comedies to tout coast-to-coast in many seasons wears the modest title of Little Me, and it will come to the Auditorium Theatre Thursday night, Jan. 29, for three nights and a Saturday matinee.

Sid Caesar, stage, screen and television star, will play the seven roles he created for the Patrick Dennis comedy on Broadway. Other original numbers come here include Virginia Martin, Nancy Andrews and the dancing duo, Sven Swenson.

Little Me is based on the best-seller novel by Patrick Dennis. Author of the musical book is Neil Simon who wrote the popular Come Blow Your Horn. Music and lyrics were by Cy Coleman and Carolyn Leigh whose previous Broadway hit was Willentz.

Father and Mother produced Little Me. Their previous Bellinger include How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying, Where's Charley, Guys & Dolls, Silk Stocking, The Boy Friend, and Cas-Cas.

The seven separate roles by Sid Caesar in Little Me run the time span from a 16-year-old student to a rich octogenarian. Belle's role is played by both Virginia Martin and Nancy Andrews. Musical numbers in the huge production include Real Estate Girl, 'The Other Side of the Tracks, I Love You, Merle (a U.S. and the famous Beethoven number).

Little Me's reputation for having been the greatest-dancing show of the recent Broadway season derives from the work of the noted choreographer Bob Fosse who also assisted Cy Coleman. Robert Redford did the libretto and Robert Flecsher designed the opulent costumes. Four railroad baggage cars are required to move the big show's physical production.

At Our House

'The Cobben Gold'

By MARY TIMMY DALY

"The more blessed to give than to receive!"

No one, probably, could argue with this tenet, in theory not in general practice.

However, there are exceptions. One came to light at our house recently, at other houses, even at a rectory.

As to the "giving" bit, our grandson Timmy developed a cold, one of those sniffling jobs to which year-olds are prone. Sneezes, runny nose, general malaise. The new accomplishment of walking was temporarily abandoned. All he wanted was to be cuddled in his mother's arms, or snuggled up to his grandfather.

"Don't let him sneeze at you, Daddy," Mary warned the Head of the House. "One cold in this house is enough."

Not sure to be dictated to, the Head of the House scoffed at the warning.

"We're doing all right, aren't we Timmy?" he said. "Little baby germs like yours are just — well, just little baby germs. I would give you a cold if I had one. But you give me a cold? Non-sensical!"

"It can happen here, it did."

WAKING WITH a volcanic sneezing spell, a head the size of a football, a nose resembling Niagara, the Head of the House decided that he might stay in bed "for an hour or so till I get this thing licked." Blamed was everything from the open window on the left to a shoe that needed repair, to changing a tire in the snow — everything and anything but "those baby germs."

"Shouldn't be sore cautious," he readily confessed. "Bus windows, leaky shoes, changing tires — no good in this weather. Now's Timmy's gold!"

Maggie assured him, from a safe distance, that Timmy's cold was a hair's breadth of fact, a great deal of it had gone, though diplomatically she refrained from saying what it had gone.

"Baby germs, not long getting rid of 'em," the Head of the House whizzed.

"You mean . . ."

"I mean, this is one of your headaches, or whatever you call 'em. You know — it's more blessed to give than to receive. That's a beautiful, in reverse."

"That's a bawdy — you know, MAXIM — not a beautiful," the priest said.

"Let's put it this way, Father," said the Head of the House. "Far as kids are concerned, it's more blessed to give — than to receive one. But, honestly, they give so much more . . ."

"I'll buy that one," smiled the padre ("Uncle Frank"), as he went in to see the medico about his "cold."

INDIA: CATHOLIC OPPORTUNITY

Nine years ago U.S. Catholics helped to build a school for girls in KOTTAYAM, southern INDIA. The result: The school today has 1,400 students. Among the graduates are nurses, teachers, doctors, scientists. The school is in INDIA, a simple, unadorned . . . Perhaps now you can help to provide what the school lacks — a substantial planned and financed fund to serve as a focal point for CATHOLIC ACTION activities in KOTTAYAM. The building will be used for school and might well be used for school and might well be used for school and might well be used for school.

When the Little Flower was asked one day why she continued to walk with a sore foot, she replied that each painful step was made for some weary missionary. Your sacrifices, prayers and financial aid are precious things for our weary, overburdened missionaries in the Near and Middle East. You can help by:

- Contributing a CHAPEL or CHURCH. Cost: $2,000 to $10,000.
- Helping the Lepers (DAMIAN CLUB), aged (PALACE OF GOLD), orphan (ORPHAN'S BREAD), training (MARY'S BAKERY), educating missionaries (GRYBOSTOM CLUB). Cost: $1 a month.
- Feeding PALESTINE REFUGEE family. FOOD PACK. AGE level $15.
- Adopt a child. Cost of education: $100 a year for six years.
- Train a Sister like SISTER FELICIA. Cost: $150 a year for two years.
- Join our association. Fee: $1 a year for single persons; $2 for a family.
- Give an article to a Mission Chapel. Suggestions: Vestments $25; Monstrance $40; Chalice $40; Sanctuary Lamp $15.
