Council's Liturgy Reform Shows Prayer Priority

Vatican City—(AP)—Pope Paul VI, at his mid-week general audience, told a large number of pilgrims that with the promulgation of the schema on the Sacred Liturgy the Second Vatican Council had sounded "an exhortation to us all to pray and pray well."

"The Church," he said, "is sometimes accused of emphasizing her laws and decrees, her visible authority. The highest authorities of the Church, however, have turned their attention to the liturgy and given the place of honor to prayer and conversation with God."

Stressing that "authority and spirit in the Church are mutually helpful," the Pope said the Church's laws "obtain for the Heavenly Father many souls who will adore Him in spirit and in truth."

"The Pope," he said, "exhorts you over and over again, as the Council does, to pray well, to pray with the Church, especially at the approach of Christmas. Pray to be worthy to receive Him at His coming. Pray that Our Lord may be born again and live in you, in your souls, your homes, your communities, both civil and religious, with the precious gifts of His grace."

Protestants Note New Freedom in Spain

Madrid—(AP)—Special authorities are becoming increasingly receptive and tolerant in their dealings with the Protestant minority in Spain. Jose Cardona, secretary of the Evangelical Defense Commission here, told a prominent U.S. educator and interreligious leader.

However, in a conversation with Dr. Lewis Neary, president of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, Cardona, whose group was set up in 1960 to represent the interests and claims of all the various Protestant bodies in this country, complained that there still appeared to be "a certain amount of opposition" on the part of the authorities in dealing with Protestant problems.

Dr. Jones, who was accompanied by Mrs. Jones, was in Madrid on his way home from Rome, where he met and talked with leading prelates and non-Catholic delegates observing the Second Vatican Council.

Chardin Study Set for August

New York—(AP)—The American University is sponsoring a study of the life and work of the late Father Pierre Teilhard de Chardin, French Jesuit and paleontologist.

In connection with the study, the department also will sponsor a five-week research program for specialists in this field, and an American Teilhard Congress, Aug. 17-21.

Father de Chardin, who died here in 1955, was noted for his controversial evolutionary theories and for his part in the discovery of the Sino-Tibetan or Peking man, generally regarded as one of the oldest of fossil men.

The priest's interests ranged from theology and philosophy to literature and art. His writings have been criticized by the Executive Commission of the Holy Office at the Vatican, but his works were never placed on the Index of Prohibited Books.

No Solution In 'Divorces'

Berlin—(AP)—It is considered unlikely that any Catholic who has been married in a Non-Catholic ceremony to get a divorce, according to a leading German ecclesiastical scholar.

Father Thomas Sartory said in a lecture here: "One may not counsel the Catholic partner in a mixed marriage to divorce in order that he may be able to take part in the sacraments, nor to bear responsibility for his own divorce." He also said that to try to get out of a situation by original or wrong behavior by committing a new injustice.

Speaking of mixed marriages in general, Father Sartory urged the creation of "mixed marriage advisory centers" which would make available counseling services on theological and educational points.

The priest, former editor of the Benedictine ecclesiastical review, Una Sancta, and now adviser to Julius Cardinal Döpfner of Munich, said that while pastors should try to discourage marriage between couples of different religions, the final decision must be left to the interested parties. "One cannot exclude the possibility of God's having brought two persons of different faiths together," he said, "and therefore a mixed marriage is not always against His will."

A Baptist layman and a lawyer, by profession, Senor Cardona has appeared on a number of occasions before government officials who have been engaged, under the direction of Foreign Minister Fernando Maria Castiella y Mela, in studying the text of a draft law to define the legal status and rights of the Spanish Protestant minority.

Citing evidence of an improved climate for Protestants, Senor Cardona said that 1963 had seen the opening or reopening of 13 Protestant places of worship and a 160% in the difficulties previously experienced by Protestants in conducting civil marriages.

Cooperation
Birmingham—(AP)—Six priests and 4 laymen have been named by Bishop Robert J. Joyce of Birmingham to form a diocesan ecumenical committee to promote understanding, mutual respect and cooperation among Christians with the ultimate objective being their unity.
