TV Classroom
In TV Guide

The Feb. 8 issue of TV Guide features the Sisters and priests of the Boston Archdiocese helping into a new type of surrounding... and very well at that.

"I had to scribble for the last 10 minutes."

"It will have to be a peaky deal."

Quotes from a Hollywood... Behind the scenes in the NBC newscasts? Not necessarily. This is the kind of language that is being bandied about the workshop of the Boston Catholic Television Center these days as the news and public affairs Boston stations prepare for the opening of their new TV stations.

The FCC has given authorization for a UHF station, WJTB-TV, Channel 38, to be operated in Boston starting this summer. Educational TV will be the primary goal with some programming in public affairs.

Sixteen nuns of various orders in the archdiocese will be on the air, teachers and producers and, as they say in their newsworld jargon, they are busy learning the ropes.
