

Progress Reported At Fair Haven

A resume of progress made during 1963 at the new St. Jude's chapel in Fair Haven has recently been compiled. The overcrowding of St. Thomas church in Red Creek during summer months pointed up the need for a local place of worship for hundreds of Catholics and campers.

During the late summer of 1962, with the cooperation of the Red Creek Lodge, 1000-459 and crews of volunteer helpers, the building on the corner of Main St. and Short Cut Rd. was utilized for Sunday Mass.

Immediately upon its becoming available, more than 500 worshippers were served at this makeshift chapel.

In January, 1963, the St. Thomas Catholic Church Corp. of Red Creek purchased this building from the Red Creek Lodge. Services of an architect, Philip Winkler of Rochester and an attorney, Edward Knecht of Cairo, were obtained and work was begun by the Gifford Construction Co. of Weedsport and local help.

Following purchase, major renovations were made. Among these was the replacement of the aluminum cladding insulating siding. Enclosing the front porch and removing interior partitions resulted in a nave 40 x 80 feet to accommodate over 500 persons. Up to the present time, over $24,000 has been expended and spent on the building.

To date there have been over 30 families participating in the actual work of the chapel. Many anonymous donations have been received, making this prominent Fair Haven building a credit to the village.

The first work party was organized in May, 1963, with the first Mass of the summer season held on June 23, 1963. A total of 12 Sunday worship services were celebrated during the summer with an average of 500 persons at each service, proving the need.

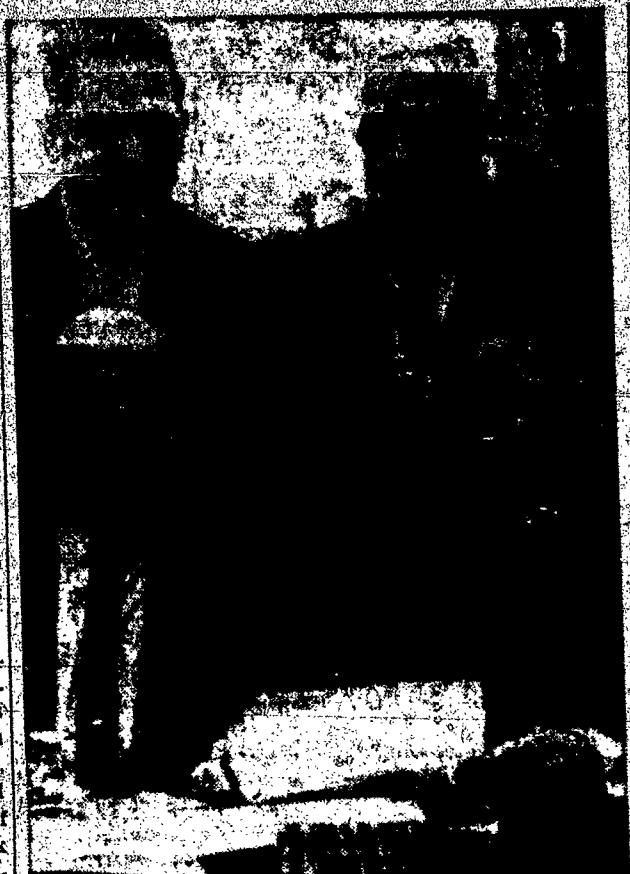

Of noteworthy interest is the historical fact that 40 years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Van Spey, Sr. and Mrs. Harry Van Spey, Jr. were the first Catholics in Fair Haven. Now there are 30 families in the area and many summer parishioners to be served.

BISHOP KEARNEY has designated the building as St. Jude's chapel. On July 4, 1963, Father Heindel, the pastor, solemnly blessed the chapel and later that day, the Fair Haven American Legion presented the national colors to the chapel in a public parade ceremony. Father Heindel, in his uniform as 98th Division Reserve chaplain, received the colors.

Trustees of St. Thomas Church, the mother church, are Joseph Albano and Joseph Bassett. Acting trustees of St. Jude's chapel are Dwight Grant, Robert Martin, Clement Squires and Harry VanSpeybroeck.

Stained glass windows are being designed as memorials by donors and are being installed. A major undertaking this spring will be the beautifying of inner rooms by redecorating and interior painting. Progress continues well ahead of schedule toward completion of the planned program.

It is hoped and planned that the needs of local residents and vacationers will continue to be served during summer seasons by St. Jude's chapel of Fair Haven thanks to village pride and church-community cooperation.

Construction work on the new St. Jude's chapel in Fair Haven is well advanced. The building is expected to be completed by the end of the year.

Take The Lid Off Racial Problem A Woman's Job

A Rochester priest told the Monroe County Council of Catholic Women this week that the solution of the race problem locally depended in a special way on the women of Rochester. Rev. Robert Kreckel said that in the North the character of "America's perennial problem" had moved past the first barriers (voting rights, service in hotels, etc.) to the crucial area of neighborhoods.

"It is in the neighborhood where women exert the primary influence," he said.

Their concern for their children, their homes and their schools makes them "the real barometers of public opinion in these crucial areas."

Father Kreckel, moderator of the Rochester Catholic Interracial Council, challenged his hearers to "take the lid off Negro in Rochester."

Explaining his phrase, he said that the great majority of Negroes in Rochester are bottled up in two crowded areas of the city. Catholic women should strive to create a climate of opinion which would open up housing opportunities in a fair way.

"This is a moral problem — the will of God is involved and the solution calls for the widest spread justice and charity," he stressed.

Justice will need the needs of the upper-class and middle-class Negro, who is in a position to move into the neighborhood he prefers — if he has a fair chance, he went on.

At the same meeting, held in Sacred Heart parish hall, Mrs. Joseph Palo, MCC president, announced that the Council was inaugurating a program of interracial "Home Visits" to begin in April. It will be a parallel effort to the same program begun recently by the Catholic Interracial Council. Sponsorship of the program by the MCC will make the opportunity available to any Catholic woman who is a member of an affiliated group.

Mrs. Arthur Farren will be chairman of the "Home Visits" program. Women interested in participating in such home visits were asked to call Mrs. Farren at FA 8-4886 for information.

Churches Abet Segregation

Cleveland—(NC)—Two chief speakers agreed that churches have failed to form a public conscience on the moral issue of racial discrimination in addresses at a two-day Conference on Religion and Race here.

Dan W. Dodson, director of New York University's center for human relations and community studies, said the most sensitive point in the racial crisis today is in the field of education.

He warned churches against permitting their schools to become a haven for refugees from public education who, mainly, are fleeing from racial integration of classrooms. He said too many white parents are making a child's academic progress a "class symbol of social status."

Chili-Miss Wins Latin Contest

Jennifer A. Reed, seventeen-year-old senior at Churchville Chili High School and one of Monroe County's top five New York State Regents scholarship winners, took first honors in St. Andrew's Seminary contest to translate President Kennedy's inaugural address into Latin.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Myron Reed, 10 Ventura Road, in suburban Rochester.

Miss Reed was one of 40 entrants from 10 high schools in the contest. Judges were Miss Helen Durkin, Madison High School; Miss Marie Leinberger, Sacred Heart Academy; and Sister Mary Cyprian, Our Lady of Mercy High School.

The young scholar plans to be a college teacher after her college studies.

Sports Dinner Planned

FATHERSON SPORTS dinner will be held at Mt. Carmel Parish, April 6 at 6:30 p.m. with Johnny Unita as guest speaker. Admission is $3.50 per person. Committee includes from left, seated, Philip B. Dattilo, Sr., the Rev. Anthony Valente and standing, George R. Perrotta and Michael J. Mauro.

Funeral Directors Issue Stand On Proposed Bill

"We are thoroughly in agreement with the bill proposed by Attorney General Louis J. Lefkowitz requiring funeral directors to furnish a copy of the Attorney General's bill requires. There are exceptions — as when arrangements are made on the telephone and particularly with people located at a distance. In such cases, arrangements should be confirmed in writing at the earliest opportunity."

Immediately after Mr. Lefkowitz announced in November that he was initiating an inquiry into funeral services, our association offered its fullest cooperation. We have met with his staff several times since. Many of our members have voluntarily opened their books and records to them.

"We hope that the Attorney General's investigation will find little, if any, excesses or wrong-doing, but whatever his inquiry discloses, he will find us ready to cooperate in correcting any violation of law or good professional conduct, and in bringing any willful wrongdoers to task."

Every well-regulated funeral establishment keeps a detailed record of all funeral arrangements. There is no reason why the funeral director should not furnish a copy of the Attorney General's bill requires. There are exceptions — as when arrangements are made on the telephone and particularly with people located at a distance. In such cases, arrangements should be confirmed in writing at the earliest opportunity.

25 Years Ago

(From files of the Catholic Courier, March 16, 1938)

Filial homage was paid by the faithful to the new Holy Father, Pius XII with earnest prayers for his intention at a special Pontifical Mass celebrated by Bishop Kearney in Sacred Heart Pro-Cathedral. Archbishop Thomas F. Healy in the sermon asked prayers "that God will bless the Vicar on earth."

Bishop Kearney and Rev. Daniel A. Lord, S.J., national socially leader from St. Louis, Mo., were listed to lend prestige to the 10th Anniversary Day of DeSales High School Sociality, Geneva.

"The key to many of the problems facing society today is the Living Wage," the Rev. Thomas D. O'Connor, C.M., of Niagara University said in the third Memorial Lecture on Encyclicals of Pope Pius XI at Columbus Civic Center.

Catholic U. Role To 'Reconcile'

Rome—(RNS)—Pope Paul VI, addressing teachers and students at the Pontifical Gregorian University here, stressed that a major task of a university is to reconcile modern knowledge with the great Church traditions of the past.

Another main task of church universities, he said, is to instill in students "obedience to the teaching of the Church and her Doctors, the first of which was St. Thomas-Aquinas."

Students surprised the Pope with the gift of an automobile. The pontiff, expressing gratification for the gesture, said he would donate the car to a Catholic foreign mission field.

Appliance Dealers See Fair Weather

Instant sunshine can be a reality when it comes to clothes drying if you heed the advice of local appliance dealers and invest in an automatic clothes dryer.

A wide assortment of name brands are available in both gas and electric models that allow you to dry clothes no matter what the weather outside, even at night. Dealers point out that there is no fading as with sunlight and that clothes come out of your dryer softer and fluffier requiring far less ironing because there is no stiffness and harshness that is often present in line drying.

Bookkeeping a Chore?

Here's the simplest way to take most of the chores out of bookkeeping: a Checking Account gives you an accurate record of just how much you spend—and for what. Your cancelled checks are legal receipts. This built-in money-control and bookkeeping system is one of the advantages of a checking account at Marine Midland Trust Company of Rochester. There are others, of course. Like saving you the drive into town to pay bills. A check and a 5c stamp takes care of that chore for you.

Drop in at our office nearest you. We'll help you select the checking account best suited to your needs.
