

Civil Rites Bill to 'Make Good People Safe'

Washington — (NC) — The aim of the civil rights bill pending in the Senate is "not to make bad people good but rather to make good people safe," according to a leading civil rights organization.

"Laws cannot and should not dictate a man's private thoughts and wishes. They can and should prevent the harmful consequences of those thoughts and wishes," says a new pamphlet on the rights bill published by the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights. THE PAMPHLET outlines provisions of the bill, answers objections to them and makes "general observations" on the issues.

"To the argument that 'education,' not legislation, is the real solution to discrimination it replies that 'the law itself is a powerful instrument for education.'"

"After thousands of years," it adds, "it is still necessary to have laws against murder to enforce the ethical teaching of 'thou shalt not kill.'"

The pamphlet urges individuals and organizations to work for passage of the rights bill. In contacting their senators, it says, people should "be specific."

"Don't just say you're for civil rights. Urge your senators to: 1) support the bill in its present form; 2) vote against all weakening amendments."

It calls for write-in campaigns and similar efforts on behalf of the bill by "churches, unions, lodges, societies, fraternal and civic groups."

The Leadership Conference brings together more than 80 national organizations interested in winning passage of the rights bill in this session of Congress. Among the cooperating organizations are the National Catholic Social Action Conference, the National Catholic Conference for Interracial Justice, the National Council of Catholic Men and the National Council of Catholic Women, as well as many Protestant and Jewish groups, labor organizations and civic groups.

In a statement accompanying its pamphlet, "Some Questions and Answers on the Civil Rights Bill," the conference said the provisions and possible effects of the rights bill have been "misstated, distorted and misinterpreted." It called the 24-page pamphlet an effort "to supply the corrective of fact and sober comment."
