Dear Loretta Young

No Complaints

By MISS LORETTA YOUNG

Never Complains
Dear Miss Young:

My wife never complains. But when something I do finally upsets her enough for her to lose her temper, all the little complaints she has been saving up, sometimes over a period of two months, are thrown at me all at once.

She is always sorry afterwards, but I am continually worried because I don't know when I am doing things that displease her because of her habit of not complaining until long after the fact.

She says that it is un-Christian to criticize and that her fault lies in losing her temper, but I keep telling her that both of us would be a lot happier if she would learn to let off steam on-the-spot. What think you?

"Walking on Eggs"

Dear "Eggs":

Constructive criticism at the time of the irritation is the duty of a good Christian wife or husband. Even apart from the question of duty, it is an absolute necessity in order to learn to live together happily.

If your wife is mute when something irritates her, how are you going to know what bothers her? Her way of doing things would be fine if you were a mind reader.

Also, point out to her that she'd never get an ulcer if she blows off steam before it compounds into an explosion.

Un-Christian? Indeed not! Just plain honesty.

Sincerely, Loretta Young

Over-Eating

Dear Loretta Young:

My wife eats all evening long. I have talked to her about this to no avail. She now "tips the scale" at well over 200 pounds. This may not seem very serious but I'm getting desperate. Please give me some advice on how to break her of this horrible habit. She has been examined for possible thyroid problems but they simply don't exist in her case.

By the way, I am 6 ft. 1 in and 195 and have kept slim because of self-discipline. This exercise of self-discipline will not be followed by my "bette" and bigger half.

"Outweighed"

Dear "Outweighed":

It is a scientific fact that some people, when they are upset or unhappy, very often tend to over-indulge either in liquor, sleep, narcotics or food. Most times, the experts say, they don't even know that they are doing this, much less understanding why. It is labeled "compulsive eating."

I do not know your wife's emotional make-up, nor do I know the history of her weight problem. However, if you can see an inkling of truth in what I have said as applied to your "bigger and better half," then stop HOUNDING her with words of reproach and go to an expert for advice—advice, for both of you.

Sincerely, Loretta Young

Hitch-Hikers

Dear Miss Young:

My husband and I and our six children live on a farm about ten miles from town and have a happy life. My husband is a very generous man, but his generosity causes me some anxiety. He always picks up hitch-hikers, whenever there is room for them in the car. I am terribly afraid because of all the stories I have heard about hitch-hikers and have told him so. He always replies with the story of the Good Samaritan and laughs it off. Should I try to change him or live with my fears?

"Very Worried"

Dear "Very Worried":

I also reply with the story of the GOOD SAMARITAN! What more can I say? That answer came straight from headquarters.

Sincerely, Loretta Young

R. D. Farrell
Rites Offered
At St. Pius X

Funeral services for Robert D. Farrell, 67, were offered at St. Pius X Church last Thursday by the Rev. Donald Murphy, Mr. Farrell, who operated Farrell's Pharmacy at 1608 Plymouth Ave. S., died March 31, 1964 at his home, 15 Lonrah Dr.

Mr. Farrell had been confined to his home since he had a stroke four years ago.

For 25 years before that he owned and operated the store, it was called Frank's Pharmacy. He had been employed there about eight years before he bought it.

He was born in Worcester, Mass., and came to Rochester about 45 years ago. He belonged to the Holy Name Society of St. Pius X Church on Chili Avenue.

Surviving are his wife, Frances; two daughters, Nancy Farrell and Mrs. Herbert Brennan Jr.; and three grandchildren, all of Rochester.

Interment was at Holy Sepulchre Cemetery. Funeral arrangements were by Alvah Haloran and Son Funeral Home.

Mass, Breakfast
For P.O. Women

"Postalites of Mary," an organization of the Catholic women employees of the Rochester Post Office, will attend their Annual Mass and Communion at St. Joseph's Church, at 7:30 a.m., April 19.

Celebrant will be Reverend Bernard J. Powers, C.S.S.R., Chaplain of the group.

Breakfast at the Treadway Inn will follow the Mass.

Officers of the "Postalites" are: Angelina DeSantis, president; Dorothy Federico, Vice President; Ethel B. Klotz, Secretary; Marie LaPica, Treasurer.

Correction
For St. John's

In last week's tabulation of parish payments of pledges for the 1960 high school fund campaign, St. John's Church in Greece was erroneously listed as meeting 33.12 per cent of its total. The correct percentage is 83.12.

Fashion Show at St. Ann's Home

RESIDENTS OF St. Ann's Home will model clothes from Topps today, April 8, at 7:30 p.m. at the home. Models include from left, Mrs. Catherine Quinn, Thomas Healy, Mrs. Alice Hauptenthal, 91, Charles Sullivan and Mrs. Ellen Flynn. The group will be entertained by a vocal group, The Zephyrs.

Buffet Supper, Dance
To Aid Holy Childhood

School of the Holy Childhood will receive all proceeds from a buffet supper and dance to be sponsored by Mr. and Mrs. James Delsenroth of Penfield at the Hospitality House, 2226 Penfield Rd. on Sunday, April 19.

The buffet will run from 8 to 8 p.m. with dancing to the music of the Strollaires and Al Schneider's orchestra from 7:30 p.m. to midnight.

Mrs. William P. Young and Mrs. Carl Schlegel are co-chairmen of arrangements with Mrs. John Grady in charge of tickets. Donation is $2 per ticket with deadline for sales and reservations April 13. Tickets may be obtained from any parent or from Mrs. Brady at DU 1-2881 or from Mrs. Young at GL 8-3025.

GOOD MORNING

Today, your Catholic Courier inaugurates a change in delivery day. Look for your Catholic Courier every Thursday morning from now on. This change in day of delivery is planned to give you extra time for the enjoyment of your Catholic Courier news; time to plan for your family's participation in the various church, club and civic events. Time too, to select the many vital purchases you make each week for your family's comfort and welfare.

The change in delivery is the first of several planned changes. Changes that you, the reader, requested in the survey conducted last year. We hope our long range plans meet with your approval and we will continue to merit the acceptance you accord your Catholic diocesan newspaper.

One change you won't see is our policy of accepting advertising. All our advertisers are members of a select group. Those whose integrity in business dealings is unquestioned and consistent. Their support of the Courier makes our growth a reality. Your support of them is a sign of true Catholic action in voicing thanks and approval.
