Legion of Mary Consecration Rite

Three hundred young people gathered at St. Anne's Church last Sunday, April 12, to renew their consecration in the Legion of Mary.

In this annual event, the members of this apostolic organization stood before a specially erected shrine and promised: "I am all Thine Mary, my Queen, my Mother, and all that I have is Thine."

Through actual stories, the speaker, Rev. Michael Reagan, asked the young people to continue to manifest "their tremendous love and zeal to better themselves and their parish in the coming year."

The ceremony concluded for the 17 praesidia present, with Benediction by Rev. William Gordinier, junior curia spiritual director.

Refreshments were then served in the school hall by James Alessi, Anne Christman, Diane Graniath and Mary Wilson.

National Head Speaks On Family Life Role

Too many parents lack confidence in their ability to guide their growing children, said a veteran in the family life apostolate here last week. The Rev. Bertin Roll, national moderator of the Confraternity of Christian Mothers went on:

"You parents have years of experience—you've suffered in the battle of life — and you know far better than your children what is best for them!"

FATHER ROLL spoke at a "Fathers' Night" dinner sponsored by the Holy Family Parish Unit of the Christian Mothers group last Thursday night.

"Parents are being pressured, cajoled and brainwashed to let their children do just what the youngsters want—and too often, the parents are giving in with a shrug and a 'What can you do?'" he continued.

Fathers in particular are apt to evade their God-given roles as leaders and disciplinarians of their children. But when they face their role like men, the whole spirit of the family improves, the priest said.

"As far as dating customs, men are better judges of right and wrong than women. And as men, they know what immodest dress can do to the emotions of the boys their daughters go out with," he stressed.

Other points made by the Pittsburgh priest as he talked about common faults of parents were:

Temper — "There are times when it should be used. There are situations that call for a loud voice and an angry tone!"

Housekeping perfectionists — "Homes are to be lived in, not just admired. If the children are afraid to muss up the living room a bit, they'll go elsewhere."

Drinking — "Too many are drinking too much, because of social pressure. The rise of women alcoholics is almost unbelievable."

Dating — "Starts much too early. Experts say that marriage comes about six years after dating starts. And yet parents who allow their sixth-graders to date are shocked when the youngsters want to marry before they finish high school."

Father Roll launched his talk with an appeal to the women present to see clearly their essential role as wives and mothers.

"Many women are running away from holiness because they're running from the one thing they promised to do — be good wives and mothers."

Fidelity to the daily duties of one's state in life is a sure path to heaven, he stressed:

"If you're living up to your vocation, you are getting holier by the hour. Marriage is designed by God to help you become holy. If you and your husband aren't helping each other get to heaven, you're missing the main point of your marriage."

The Christian Mothers' unit to which Father Roll spoke is observing it's 75th anniversary this year. Founded in 1889 at Holy Family Church, it was reorganized in 1962 under the presidency of Mrs. Andrew Wuest.

College Shakespeare Fete To Feature Oxford 'Don'

Christopher Ricks, a "don" of Worcester College in the University of Oxford, will help Nazareth College celebrate its Shakespeare Festival week beginning April 20. Ricks will spend five days at the college during his first trip to the United States. He was one of the academic supervisors of Sister Thomas Marion of the college faculty when she studied at Oxford.

SEVERAL EVENING programs featuring the Oxford University don have been scheduled. On Monday and Wednesday evenings, April 20 and 22, coffee hours will be held in the Social Room of Medaille Hall beginning at 8 p.m. On Monday evening Ricks will discuss the poetry and criticism of William Empson, and on Wednesday evening American poetesses, including Emily Dickinson and Edna St. Vincent Millay.

The public is invited to all evening programs.

The Oxford University don will also visit English classes at the college, discussing Milton, Tennyson, Dickens and Hopkins. He will also meet informally with smaller groups from Nazareth and St. John Fisher College.

A tutor in Jacobean drama, the Victorians and contemporary British literature, Ricks has published critical articles on Middleton, Dickens and William Empson. His first book, "Milton's Grand Style," which appeared in the fall of 1963, was favorably received by British and American reviewers. While in this country, Ricks will also consult manuscripts at Harvard University in connection with a book on Tennyson which he is currently writing.

Fisher Elects New Officers

Students at St. John Fisher College last Friday elected a new team to take the reins of student government next autumn. Leading the list of winners is new president, Daniel Clancey of 60 Rye Road in Greece.

Edward Courtney, 54 College Street in Lima, New York is vice-president elect. Treasurer will be Joseph McGuire, 75 Mayfield Street, Rochester and secretary will be Daniel Kinsky, 80 Lochnavar Parkway in Pittsford. Also elected were 14 members of the school's student board of governors.

DURING THE vigorous, week-long campaign, the Fisher campus was alive with the sights and sounds of a full blown national election drive. Bold banners and posters decorated rooms and hallways and candidates competed in face to face debates. With party sponsored rallies and social events, the Frontier and Constructivist Parties vied for the precious student vote.

When the election dust settled on Friday evening the winners and losers gathered in the school's auditorium for the R.O.T.E.—Results Of The Election—dance.
