GOD LOVE YOU!

By MOST REV. FULTON J. SHEEN

Is not love of the poor of the world tied up with the love of a parish for the poor in its area? Suppose a frontiersman had cleared a small piece of a forest and, with the trees he had chopped down, built a log cabin. The trees yet uncut, or the land yet uncultivated, could be likened to souls still in the order of nature, knowing not Christ. The trees subjected to the axe of discipline and made to minister to a human habitation might be likened to souls who became members of the Mystical Body of Christ, or the supernatural order. Would not such a woodsman seek to extend the arable land and diminish the waste foliage? Is not a pastor of a parish bound in like manner, out of love of Christ, to bring lost sheep into the fold, to become involved in every aspect of human life because Christ affected all humanity by His Incarnation?

Will there not be, as a result of the Second Vatican Council, involvement and identification of the parish with every single soul in the parish? The parish is not to minister to the saved alone; it serves the city, the community, the world, the uncut trees which are capable of becoming crucifixes. As the parish must not be a ghetto or a spiritual fort under siege, but rather a leaven in the mass of the city's corruption, so the diocese and the nation are not to hoard their treasures as if they were national, but rather share them with Moslems, Buddhists, the hungry, the slum-dwellers and the wild foliage of the Communists' forests. The pastor who is not involved in the life of the city in which he lives, as our Lord went over Jerusalem, is also the pastor who will share all his blessings with the world, as His Master shed His Blood on the Cross at the crossroads of the civilizations of Jerusalem, Athens and Rome.

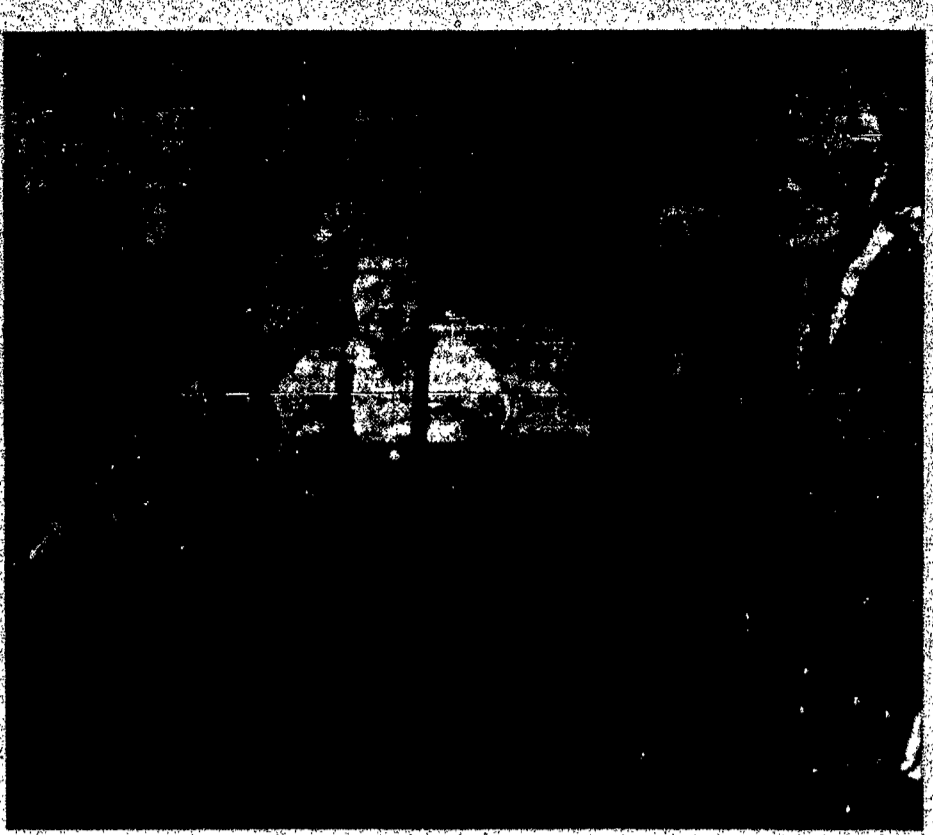

In a recent survey, 92 per cent of Catholics asked for more emphasis on the world obligation of the parish and the Mystical Body and less on parish needs and particular devotions. The "sense of the faithful" is right! We are members of the Mystical Body of Christ, and wherever there is "bodiness" there is our ministry, for the Incarnation was the "enfleshing" of God in the form of man. There is humanity in the dope-fiend, in the Communist, in the juvenile delinquent who calls himself an athlete, in Harlem, in Vietnam, in the slums of Latin America. In other words, we are Catholic not just because we belong to an institution or a parish, but because we have a universal obligation to all mankind. The pastor who helps the poor in his parish, even though they are not Catholics, is the pastor who makes sacrifices for the 2 billion who know not Christ. And the same is true for you: if you love humanity, for whom Christ died, you will seek to propagate the Faith all over the world. Won't you?

Ecumenism Statement Said Better Balanced

Women — (RNS) — The fact that had the chance of considering the Second Vatican Council ended its second session last December without voting on the chapters in the schema on ecumenism dealing with religious liberty and Catholic-Jewish relations has proved to be a "blessing," according to Augustin Cardinal Bea.

In an interview with Civiltà Cattolica, bimonthly Jesuit magazine published here, the president of the Secretariat for Promoting Christian Unity said that a vote on the chapters would have seemed "rather hurried" and "not sufficiently ripened," considering the short time available after the Council Fathers' received texts.

"Now," he said, "they have had the chance of considering the entire matter, calmly studying it and thus able to render a more mature and understanding opinion in the form of a vote."

"And considering the importance of these chapters for the present life of the Church and for her position in the modern world, it is more necessary that their approval will be a true image of a wider and more profound conviction."

Speaking of the schema on ecumenism as a whole, Cardinal Bea noted the "great interest" it had aroused all over the world.

He disclosed that besides the general oral discussions of the schema in the Council chamber, as many as 471 verbal and written reports concerning it had been submitted to the secretariat general in Rome both before and after the second session.

Criticisms expressed in the reports were generally constructive, Cardinal Bea said, adding: "Thanks to a detailed study and examination of suggested amendments, the document, finally drafted will be much clearer and better balanced."

Capital Area Students Edit New Magazine

Washington — (NO) — Students at four Catholic colleges here have begun publication of a new student-edited, student-controlled magazine called Stimulus.

The magazine is being published jointly by students at Georgetown and Catholic Universities, and Trinity and Dunbarton Colleges.

The first April issue contains articles on "The College and Its Community," "Thomas Aquinas in the 20th Century," "Birth Control and the Church," "Civil Rights and Civil Wrongs" and "Professionalism in College Athletics."

The leading editorial, explaining the magazine's aims, says in part:

"It has been said that it is too much to expect young people to be always right; after all, our topics don't always have 'correct' answers. We may not always be right, but we can't stop asking essential questions. We do believe we have a right to be heard—and an obligation to ourselves to speak out."

Clergymen Pool Talents

Barre, Vt. — (NC) — Catholic and Protestant clergymen have organized the Community Brotherhood Association. Rev. John P. Christensen, pastor of the Universalist church and president of the new group, said the organization plans were made when members of the Barre Ministers' Association met with Msgr. William J. Cain, pastor of St. Monica's Catholic Church.

Aims of the association include promotion of closer communication among the churches; an interest in social welfare and problems arising from poverty; opposition to all forms of discrimination; work among youth groups to eradicate prejudice; and campaigns to strengthen opposition to offensive motion pictures and literature.
