

First Holy Communion

Girls in the First Holy Communion class wear long dresses at St. Plus X Church for First Holy Communion. All the dresses are made by a committee of mothers, and are alike. The vells too, are made by the mothers, and both have been the custom in the parish for many years. The custom of wearing long dresses is a European custom and is usually associated with the "Solemn Holy Communion" which girls make when they are eleven or twelve years old. This is a formal, solemn occasion, and differs from their "first" Holy Communion which was received when they were seven years old.
