'Family' First Communion
 Jamesburg, N.J. — (RNS) — Accompanied by her parents and her brothers to the altar rail, Little Ellen Steinhilf, 6, receives her first Communion. Father Michael A. McNulty, assistant pastor at St. James Parish, was observed by 85 of the 89 first communicants at the church and its mission parish of St. Cecilia, Monmouth Junction, N.J. Msgr. John E. Kelly, former director of the Bureau of Information of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, is pastor of St. James Parish.

Music 'Communicates' Faith

St. Louis — (RNS) — Liturgy is the most perfect form of communication and must always be open to change so that it can fulfill its function, an associate editor of "America" magazine said here in an address before the National Catholic Music Educators Association.
 Father C. J. McNaspy, S.J., vice-president of the Catholic Arts Association and a member of the board of directors of the North American Liturgical Association, said music suggests many things, "but today, especially, music suggests liturgy. And liturgy gives rise to thought in the areas of symbol, sign and communication."
 He said the liturgy affects the most complete structure of music, affecting a sharing of "man with God. God with man, and man with man, and reminded musicians and teachers that they are "ministers of music."
 Music is a "tremendous, continuing process," Father McNaspy said, "it makes individual's feel part of a group."
 He said reactions are generated by music which are not produced by other arts.
 "I believe that what modern art is attempting to find is this mobility expressed by music," he told the convention. As examples, he cited the Civil Rights March in Washington last summer "where the most moving event was the singing of 'We Shall Overcome,'" and also a recent interview with Andre Girard, "who told me he was seeking, in his work with light, this mobility that is found in music."
 The Second Vatican Council has opened some "remarkable" doors for Catholic musicians, according to Father McNaspy.
 "It has given music more than a reluctant tolerance—it has given it a positive green light," he said, referring to the schema on the liturgy approved at the Council's last session.
 "Remember that music not only adorns liturgy, but takes part in it," he told the music educators. "This puts it above the other arts."
