BREAKFAST AT TIFFANY'S . . . one of Oleg Cassini's own personal favorites from his new Fall '64 Renaissance inspired collection. A startling two-piece "suit-of-mail", the simple fluid lines of this silver-highlighted theatre suit clearly identifies it — and its wearer — as one of the new season's stand-outs. Photographed at Oleg Cassini's New York townhouse, the suit retails at about $125.

New York City — After previewing a few dozen fashion shows in this hot, humid, hectic city (the temperature at this moment is 99 degrees), I have but two words to say. WHEW—as far as the weather is concerned, WOW when it comes to fashion!

As Eleanor Lambert said in opening the American Designer series this past Sunday afternoon at the Hotel Delmonico "Fashion is getting back to fundamentals." Then flashed on screen, a color reproduction of (Goya's) Naked Maja, historically considered to be the Duchess of Alba. Then followed a series of her influences, the bare look, the wrapped head, feather headdresses, the seductive, alluring look.

The opposing influence, Miss Lambert indicated inspired by the Empress Theodora as characterized by the Byzantine embroidery and tunic, Santa Sofia blue, the grand but austere look as evidenced in long sleeved evening dresses, monastic restraint, the Carlist or Crusader look of grey with pearls. This is the minor or second influence in the incoming fashions for Fall and Winter, according to Eleanor Lambert, an excellent, sound authority.

So between the two, the Duchess of Alba and the Empress Theodora, fashion might well be engaged in a boxing match. Could be that fashion is up for grabs with a few other influences to reckon with. The influence of pop art and record houses giving rise to the gay little dance dress, bare on top, crazy around the hemline. There's one thing you can be absolutely sure of: the little boy look we no longer dress as if we were little boys headed for a hike, has gone!

That doesn't mean that the little girl look is in. It's the bigger look. The truly feminine, seductive, alluring trend is already here in a great big way. There's more skin seen in direct competition to fabric than we've ever observed in many years of covering Fashion Press Week. Even the harem influence is importantly featured, and the "kooky" look can't be laughed off any more. Femininity is rampant and while the alluring look isn't in for supermarketing, it's evident everywhere else.

The suit shape is soft and easy. Almost every suit has its own silk blouse to match the jacket lining, often lightly tied as opposed to the unrestricted overblouse of other seasons past. All skirts have movements gained in many ways, slit panels, pleats, panel folds, godets such. Coats are most often seen buttonless, wrapped around and clutched. Off-center closures are evident throughout. Necklines are either completely muffled or extremely opened up. Colors are clear, bright, brilliant, the black is back.

Fabrics are truly fabulous and often extremely costly. Connisuer fabrics costing up to $100 a yard, wholesale, are not uncommon. Velvet, satin, ropey tweeds. Furs have never been more elegantly more wetraille. A ruffled mincoat street length. A white mink, floor length, evening gown with its own jacket. And fur and fabric a definite favorite. Fur is everywhere; headlines, hemlines, necklines. Hats are helmets often seen in fur, feathers, suede or fabric.

Capsule Comment on Collection: Adele Simpson's Indian collection previewed at the Indian Pavilion at the Fair—opulent, elegant. Anne Fogarty, well mannered, gracious, elegant. Oleg Cassini, slightly tired look in part, otherwise typically, excitingly Oleg. Dior is a four letter word: D-U-L-L. The hemlines hit above the knee, middrift cap, mid calf (dowdy looking) or barely grazing the ankle. In Dior-American collection, it's as if skirts grew home and ended up looking grotesque.

IRAN: MEET SISTER POUILART

IN IRAN, (modern Persia), the city of ISFAHAN is famous for its museums, its bazaar, and the Persian carpets it produces. Its atmosphere is exotic, old-world, Moslem.—And, then, shockingly, you meet Sister Pouilart . . . Wiry and vivacious, with exhaustion in her eyes, French born Sister Pouilart loves the sick. The reason, if you ask, is simple: "Our Lord loved them," she says . . . She tells you how you can help the sick. She shows you long lines of ragged, half-starved youngsters waiting in the heat outdoors for medicines, immunizations, sometimes food . . . You go with her into an old building, the Charity, which she hopes to convert into a clinic for expectant mothers. "With very little money," she says, "we can save hundreds of lives just by giving expectant mothers the proper care. We can save the infants, too. It's the best way to show Moslems that Christians love them." . . . Will you help Sister Pouilart? No gift ($1, $5, $25, $10) is too small—but Sr. Pouilart needs large gifts, too. A sanitary bathroom, for instance, will cost $250. The entire clinic, an excellent memorial for a loved one, will cost $1,500 . . . It's hard to refuse Sister Pouilart. She has exhaustion in her eyes . . . Please do all you can.

The Holy Father's Mission Aid for the Oriental Church

A LOT FOR A LITTLE

WHAT IN THE WORLD can you get for $1? In New York, Chicago, San Francisco, $1 won't buy much. In IRAN (only 16 hours from New York by air), however, $1-a-day supports a priest or Sister . . . If you can't go to the missions yourself, you can "adopt" a missionary for a day, a week ($7), a month ($30). You'll share personally in the good he (or she) does. Write to us now.

MISSION "MUSTS"

☐ NATIVE PRIESTS. The boy in INDIA, let's say, who wants to be a priest, is an excellent investment. $180 a year ($60 altogether) pays the cost of his education. Would you like to be his sponsor?

☐ MASS-STIPENDS. The offering you make when you ask a missionary priest to celebrate Mass for your intention is literally a Godsend. Send us your Mass intentions.

☐ CHAPEL ARTICLES. Mission chapels can't be used until they're properly equipped. Why not give a Mass Kit ($140), an Altar ($75), Vestments ($50), a Chalice ($40), or a Sanctuary Bell ($5), in honor of a friend? We'll tell you where it's needed.

WHEN ST. CLEMENT HOFBAUER ONCE ASKED for help to feed orphans in his care, an atheist spat in his face. "That was for me," the saint said quietly. "Now give me something for my orphans." . . . $1-a-month gives you membership in our ORPHANS BREAD club. $10-a-month feeds and clothes an orphan.
