Clean Up

By MISS LORETTA YOUNG

Dear Miss Young: Here is my problem and thousands of other mothers I have a large family and feel as though the children should make their own beds and clean their own rooms...

He talks to me every once in a while or jokes around with me. I know he enjoys talking with me. "I can't stop loving him," it has been two years and I can't find any interest in anyone else...

Dear "Desperate": For the sake of your children's character, I suggest you stand firm and learn to put up with the mess, until they learn to behave as responsible members of the family...

My father is a military man and therefore our family is constantly on the move with his new assignments. I have made friends but before anything comes of it he moves out of the city...

With reference to your other problem, why can't you feed the children at six o'clock and you and your husband eat at eight? Many families manage very well on this schedule.

Better to leave your friends than your parents. Since you accept food, clothing, housing, allowance, guidance, education, love, etc. from your parents, don't you think it's only right that you accept some of the inconveniences that are acknowledged part of the life of a military man?

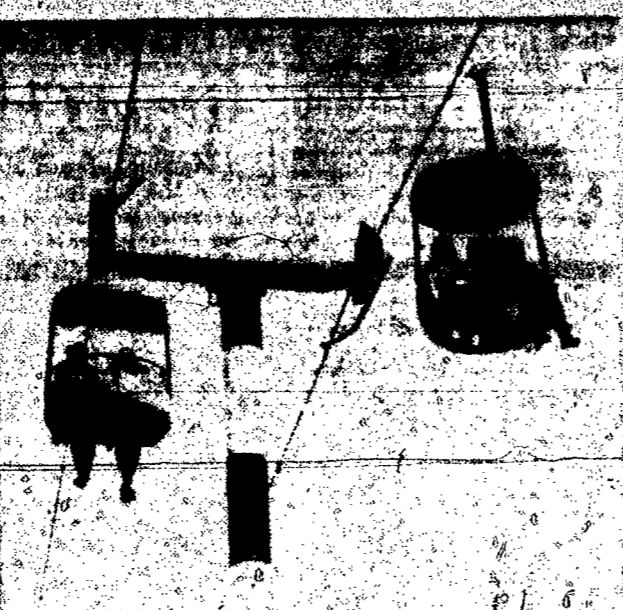

At Our House

Death of a Tree

By MARY TINLEY DALY

Many years ago, a family moved into our house, when it was brand new. The family, too, was brand new: the only beginning of a family, really, a man, a woman, an expected child...

Then he started with one question after another. "Where did they go? What time would they be home? How old was I? What was my name?"...

Talk It Over

Baby Sitting

By ANNE CULKIN

Dear Miss Culklin: When you are baby-sitting and someone phones the home where you are working, are you supposed to answer all the questions the person asks you? Last Tuesday night when I was baby-sitting, a man phoned to speak to the man-of-the-house...
