Catholics Gain In Britain

London — (RNS) — The number of Roman Catholics in Britain has risen from 4 million to 5,127,000 in the past decade, according to a survey reported by the Catholic Herald, leading Catholic weekly.

It attributed this increase to the birth rate, immigration, conversions and the children of mixed marriages. The survey noted that the Catholic rate of increase is substantially higher than the over-all growth of the population.

More than five million Catholics are now living on terms of equality with Britons of other religions and are "cordially welcomed into the community," according to Father Agnelus Andrew, director of the Catholic Radio and Television Center.

Spiritual Task For Movies

Vatican City — (RNS) — Pope Paul VI, addressing a group of Italian motion picture producers, directors and writers, stressed their "pastoral ministry" of educating and enriching viewers through films.

Far from seeking to "demoralize," he said, films should depict the spiritual, educational and cultural virtues.

"The moral postulates which govern and defend man's true life," he said, are "eternal and absolute" and apply to movies and all art. He observed that the introduction of moral criteria in film does not belittle the art of motion picture making.

Disregard of the moral order on the other hand, he said, often results in the production of movies which are uninhibited, immodest or otherwise objectionable for family patronage.

Pope Paul called to the attention of his listeners the chapter on films incorporated in the Vatican Council's communications decree, and the Church's teachings on motion pictures. He also urged them to maintain close contact with Catholic film agencies.

Following the opening of the congress, which had as one of its concerns religious problems in Latin America, a working session began discussing "the Church of the poor." Another topic under consideration was Spain's spiritual ties with Spanish-speaking nations of Latin America.

Rite Changes In India

Bombay — (NC) — India's Catholics came a step closer to the revised liturgy with approval received here from Rome by Valerian Cardinal Gracias, archbishop of Bombay, of changes proposed by the Indian bishops. When the changes are put into practice they will bring Hindi, India's national language, into various parts of the Mass, and will bring revisions in baptismal rites, catechism teaching and church architecture.

Prayer Plank Unnecessary San Francisco (NC) — The National Council of Churches advised the platform committee for the Republican convention here it feels a constitutional amendment to overrule the U.S. Supreme Court and permit prayers in public schools is "unnecessary and unwise." Arthur S. Fleming, spokesman for the council which is an agency of 31 Protestant and Orthodox bodies, urged the committee to endorse "vigorous support and enforcement" of the civil rights act.
