

John Kirby gives the Carousel a trial spin with his granddaughter, Kim, showing her approval. The Carousel was donated for use by handicapped children.

Finishing touches are put on a model of a Carousel that John Kirby will soon construct.

Children's Inventor Friend Donates New Carousel To Handicapped Children

Handicapped children are in for a special treat due to the skill and generosity of John Kirby, owner of many of the major attractions at Dreamland Park in Sea Breeze. Kirby has volunteered his time to construct a miniature Carousel for the use of the children at the Day Care Center and the summer camp, Hacacomo. The project cost him an estimated $600 and counting the hours of work put into the construction of the Carousel.

Since 1922, Kirby has owned and operated some of the major attractions at Dreamland Park including the Jack Rabbit, Subway, Tilt-A-Whirl, Flying Scooter and the Bumper Cars.

Following a fire in 1923 that extensively damaged the Jack Rabbit, one of the nation's most exciting roller coaster rides, Kirby completely rebuilt the ride by himself. He also built the Subway, a rapid ride through tunnels.

KIRBY'S HOME is a story in itself. Nestled snugly under the Jack Rabbit is a cozy three-bedroom home attractively decorated in Early American style. One of the most used rooms in the home is the music room where Mr. and Mrs. Kirby, their twin sons and their daughter spent many an enjoyable evening.

The home was built by Kirby and is so completely surrounded by trees and shrubs that very few people at Dreamland Park have ever been aware of its existence. An attractive lawn and garden complete with a white picket fence afford the Kirbys an excellent location to relax and enjoy themselves.

Does the noise of the Jack Rabbit bother them? "No," says Mrs. Kirby. "You get used to it. Just like any other noise. When our children were small, they were lulled to sleep by the whirling of the motor. That was always the signal for them to go to sleep."

What about their children—did they ever tire of the amusement rides? On the contrary, they loved every moment of it. On one occasion Kirby was testing and timing new cars for the Jack Rabbit and let the children ride as long as they wanted. Even after riding 51 times in succession, they had to be coaxed off.

But the Kirby children had other entertainment as well. They had ponies, a burro, a horse and even a battery-operated car that they drove to St. Salome's School every day using back fields to stay off the sidewalks and highway. The children later attended Aquinas and Mercy High. The car is still in excellent condition and will soon be the pride of Kirby's granddaughter, Kim.

KIRBY HAS built nine Carousels similar to the one just donated to the handicapped children. One is in E. Forman's downtown store, another in his granddaughter's basement. He has just completed a miniature model of the next one he plans to build. This one will feature five horses that go up and down as the Carousel turns.

"Everyone should have a hobby," Kirby said, "and this is mine. I'm happy that I could do this for those children."

Kirby decided on the donation to the handicapped children after talking to Louise Williams, Women's Editor of station WYAM and fashion columnist for the Courier-Journal.

One thing is certain. There are many happy children as a result of John Kirby, a man who lives under the roller coaster at Dreamland Park.

The Kirbys enjoy their well-kept yard for leisure hours. In the upper left is the start of the Jack Rabbit ride.

K.C. Order Admission Rule Changes

New Orleans, La.—(NC)—The Supreme Council of the Knights of Columbus meets here Aug. 18 to 20, with resolutions from ten state councils proposing changes in membership requirements facing delegates.

The session will be the 83rd annual gathering of the governing body of the fraternal benefit society of Catholic men. Some 400 delegates are expected.

THE RESOLUTIONS on membership stem from controversies over admission of Negro applicants. All favor relaxing the present laws of the society, in force from the organization's early days.

At present, an applicant can be refused membership if five negative votes are cast against him by members of a council when his name is submitted for a vote.

Seven of the resolutions to be acted upon at the meeting here, according to K. of C. statement, would change the law to require negative votes by more than one-third of the council members voting to reject an applicant; one would require more than one-quarter negative votes and two seek change in the law without offering specific recommendations.

The K. of C. said the resolutions were submitted by state councils of Colorado, Indiana, Minnesota, New Jersey, Nova Scotia, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Quebec, Michigan, and Wisconsin.

VOTING on the resolutions will take place Aug. 20. The supreme council meetings will open after a solemn Pontifical Mass in St. Louis Cathedral, Archbishop John P. Cody, apostolic administrator of New Orleans, will preside; Bishop Charles P. Greco of Alexandria, La., supreme K. of C. chaplain, will be celebrant; and Auxiliary Bishop Joseph B. Brunini of Natchez-Jackson, Miss., will preach.

Two young priests, from here, one for the Diocese of Rochester, the Rev. James Emmitt Murphy and one for the mission Society of Mary, Rev. Clement J. Lambert, S.M., were ordained in Europe. Father Murphy was ordained in December, 1963 at the North American College in Rome and Father Lambert in Pavilion Chamnade, Fribourg, Switzerland.
