

Corning Couple Marks 70th Wedding Jubilee

Corning—Mr. and Mrs. Horace Young of 144 Columbia St. recently marked their 70th anniversary of marriage. Mr. Young, called "Dad" by his friends, is 91 years old. Mrs. Young is 89.

Members of St. Patrick's Parish, the Youngs owe their happy marriage to the fact that they have always had "just one" notebook between them. They were married 70 years ago at St. Mary's Church by the Rev. Dan O'Leary.

Mr. Young, who has been confined to a wheel chair for the past five years, but who amazes his friends by his ability to get on his front porch and watching the passing scene. He has found there from the earliest good spring day until the brisk days of fall.

When a very young man, Mr. Young worked for the Corning Glass Works. He later went to Findlay, Ohio, with other Corningites to work for the Libby Owens Glass Co. It was when returning home to Corning with his companions to spend a Fourth of July holiday that the train was wrecked at Findlay, Ohio, and 22 young Corning men were killed. He struck a foot injury that remained all his life. He is the last known survivor of that tragedy which is marked by a monument in St. Mary's cemetery in memory of those who lost their lives.

For 43 years, until his first retirement, Mr. Young was employed by the New York Central Railroad. Not content with inactivity, he opened a small grocery store on E. First St., which he operated with the help of his daughter, Mrs. Joseph Ryan of 259 E. First St. About 14 years ago he retired for a second and final time and is now content to sit and smoke and think.

"Outside of my legs, that aren't as good as they used to be," he grins, "I feel fine. I eat good and sleep good, and I really enjoy my cigar out here in the open air."

Mrs. Young, although not appearing outside as frequently as her husband, enjoys good health. They continue to live alone and their children aid in their needs and comforts.

In addition to Mrs. Ryan, the Youngs have a son, Leon, of 148 Columbia St., five grandchildren and 27 great-grandchildren.
