

15th Century Theologian Forerunner of Council

Tribe—(NC)—Cardinal Nicholas of Cusa, 15th century German theologian can be regarded as a forerunner of the Vatican Council, Cardinal Augustin Bea, S.J., president of the Secretariat for Promoting Christian Unity, declared here.

He spoke at a Mass he offered in nearby Bernkastel-Kues (Cusa) to commemorate the 300th anniversary of the Cardinal's death Aug. 11.

Cardinal Bea pointed out that the efforts of Nicholas of Cusa show many surprising similarities to the work of the Second Vatican Ecumenical Council. He mentioned particularly his gigantic efforts for the union of "Christians" to which he devoted his work during the Council of Basel, which began in 1431, and as an envoy of Pope Eugene IV to Constantinople.

Two Million Say Rosary

Sao Paulo—(NC)—More than two million persons converted the main thoroughfare of this city into a valley of prayer in one of the greatest collective manifestations of faith in this city's 400-year history.

The demonstration was the climax of the seven month campaign directed by Father Patrick Peyton, C.S.C. and his Family Rosary Crusade team. In a 30-minute address to the faithful, Father Peyton reiterated his 22-year-old plea for family prayer.

During the campaign, his crusade team marshaled the forces of 244 parishes, 980 schools, 64 movie projectors, 90 copies of films of the Fifteen Mysteries of the Rosary. They were aided by thousands of laymen. The multitude participating represented every class of society. Federal, state and municipal authorities were present, as well as members of the armed forces.

Trends Forecast in Schools

St. Paul—(NC)—The aggressive in the classrooms in the year immediately ahead is going to produce experimentation and a shift in emphasis in Catholic schools, according to sociologist Father Andrew Greeley.

More, rather than fewer, Catholic colleges simply because of the tremendous increase in college enrollments. A great expansion in New York...

Some kind of Federal aid for Catholic schools, because public opinion has shifted and wants the best possible schools for young Americans no matter where they are enrolled.

Concentration on elements of high school training in other departments, depending on parents' wishes because they are footing the bill.

Larger outlays for textbooks, to meet the competition, which has now gone as high as $10,000 for a starting teacher with a Ph.D. at the University of California.

Father Greeley interviewed at St. Thomas College here, is the president-elect of the American Catholic Sociological Society. He is director of the National Opinion Research Center at the University of Chicago.
