'Sound Of Music' Listed

The always favored musical "The Sound of Music" is the choice for the 1964 Firemen's Benefit Show to be presented by Rochester Music Theatre at the Eastman Theatre on Sept. 25, 26, 27 and Oct. 2, 3, 4.

The celebrated story of the famous Trapp Family Singers is the eleventh and last of the musical comedies by Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein, which ran for 43 months in New York.

This is the 17th show for the combination of Noreen Carey Bride and Suzanne Wigg for Music Theatre, the fourth with the Firefighters' Association as sponsor. Previously they have done eight productions on New Years at the Auditorium, four full-length musicals (free to the public) in Highland Park Bowl and traveled with an off Broadway show "Little Mary Sunshine" last winter.

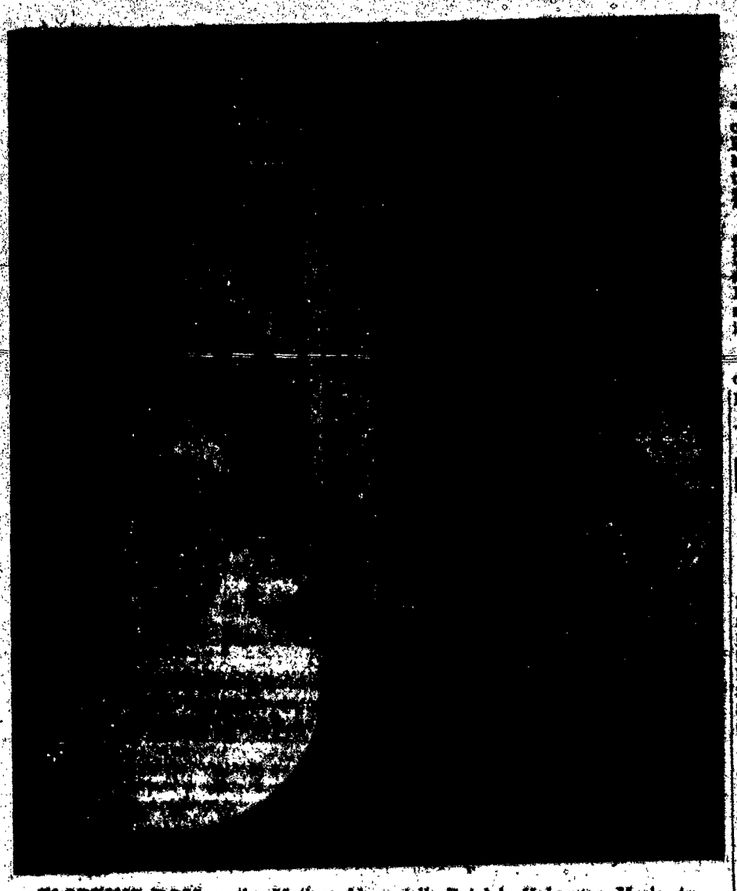
The role of Maria Rainer will be played by Patricia Heberger, who has delighted Rochester audiences with leading singing and dancing roles in "The Music Man," "Paint Your Wagon," "Carousel" and "Little Mary Sunshine."

Captain George Von Trapp will be played by Dave Brazill who has played leading men and featured roles in such productions as "The Best Man," "The Happiest Millionaire," "The Devil's Disciple", "A Shot in the Dark." The Mother Abbess will be played by Florence Ross who has been known locally for her one-woman shows of musical comedies.

Richard Kinzler, who will play Uncle Max, is from New York but he is well known in Rochester for his three seasons of summer stock at Town and Country. Elsa Schraeder, the stunning lady of wealth will be played by Patricia Murphy whose background includes work at the Riverside School of Drama in New York and singing in Greenwich Village night clubs after hours.

The book which was written by Howard Lindsay and Russell Crouse was suggested by "The Trapp Family Singers" written by Baroness Marie Augusta Trapp. The musical opened at the Lunt-Fontaine Theatre in New York on Nov. 16, 1959, to an advance sale of $2,325,000.00.

The cast will also include: Anne Piacentini as Sister Bertha; Beryl Crown as Sister Margaretta, Grace Silsson as Sister Sophia, Robert Bride as Franz, Patricia Farrell as Frau Schmidt, Jo Ann Morganti as Liesl and Robert Marafioti as Rolf Gruber. Others associated with Rochester Music Theatre include Thelma Biracree, choreographer; William Andia, set designer; and Ginny Banse, costumes.



FLORENCE ROSS as the Mother Abess tells Patricia Heberger, Maria, to "Climb Every Mountain" in Sound of Music to be presented as the annual Firemen's Benefit Show this year.

Play To Benefit Sunshine Camp

More than five hundred Rochester Rotary Club members are now selling tickets for the Club's 32nd annual benefit play "Everybody Loves Opal," the delightful comedy hit which will be presented by the Community Players at the new East High School auditorium on E. Main St., on Oct. 9, 10 and 11 and Oct. 15, 17 and 18.

"Everybody Loves Opal" ran on Broadway in 1961 and was the eighth play written by John Patrick who also authored the Pulitzer prize winning hit "Teahouse of the August Moon."

Proceeds of the benefit play are used to maintain the Rochester Rotary Sunshine Camp which provides one to two week vacations for physically handicapped children each summer. The camp, located in a section of picturesque Durand-Eastman Park was established in 1925. The past summer, 250 children attended the camp which is considered to be one of the finest and best equipped of its kind in the country.

Tickets for the play are available at the Rotary Club office in the Powers Hotel or at the Community Playhouse at the corner of Meigs and Clinton Avenue.

John Stahlbrodt, general chairman, and Meade Wright, vice chairman of the play committee, are being assisted by two Division Chairmen, Anthony Schiffino and Robert Skerritt who will direct the sales efforts of 20 teams in each of two divisions.

Disc Notes

Porgy and Bess

by PAUL CONTESTABILE

George Gershwin, Porgy and Bess, A symphonic picture—Minneapolis Symphony conducted by Antal Dorati. Morton Gould, Latin-American Symphonette-Eastman-Rochester Orchestra conducted by Howard Hanson. Mercury.

George Gershwin's most ambitious project—the American folk opera Porgy and Bess was accomplished in 1935. Success was slow, but gradually the power of the music and its depiction of tragedy in Charleston's Catfish Row began to take hold. The 1952 revival of Porgy and Bess marked its final acceptance as an American classic and subsequent performances in Europe were greeted with stormy enthusiasm.

Robert Russell Bennett prepared his Symphonic Picture of the work in 1942 at the request of Fritz Reiner and the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra. Within its 23 minutes of playing time is a free panorama of the entire Gershwin score done with impeccable taste and superb artistry.

The Eastman-Rochester makes excellent use of its percussion section in the Latin-American Symphonette. A flawless performance recorded on the Eastman Theatre stage, the Symphonette soars with inspiration and beauty.

Chopin Piano Concerto No. 1 in E Minor, Opus 11; Gina Bachauer, pianist; London Symphony conducted by Antal Dorati. Mercury.

Gina Bachauer recorded the Chopin First Concerto in July of last year at the Watford Town Hall (NW of London), a spacious, rectangular hall with a hard wooden floor and wooden walls, and an acoustical personality that is both warm and clear. Watford has been the scene of more than 150 Mercury classical recording sessions.

For last year's sessions, Mercury once again transported its recording truck, truly a studio on wheels, to England. This mobile unit contains mono and stereo tape machines, 35-mm magnetic film equipment, panels of amplifiers, playback speakers, and other electronic gear.

In this recording of the E Minor Concerto, Antal Dorati conducts the complete, uncut orchestral introduction to the soloist's entry in the first movement.

Chopin's Nocturne in C Sharp Minor and the three Etudes, Opus 25, (which round out this album) were recorded in New York after Gina Bachauer's triumphant recital at Hunter College. The circumstances surrounding both the recital and the subsequent recording session were dramatic. King Paul of Greece, a close friend of Mme. Bachauer's died two days before the recital.

Immediately after her performance, Mme. Bachauer flew to Greece to be with the royal family for one day. She then returned to New York to record for Mercury and to resume her U.S. tour. Neither the extraordinary recital nor the level of playing of the recording session reflected the tremendous emotional stress she was going through during this period. For reasons like this, her fellow artists refer to Mme. Bachauer in the following way: "Gina's a pro!"

Concerto for Two Guitars by Haydn, Vivaldi, and Marcello. Ida Presti and Alexandre Lagoya, guitarists; Kurt Redel conducting the Pro Arte Orchestra of Munich. SR90310 stereo; MG 50190 mono.

The guitar has had a succession of ups and downs in public favor during its rather long lifespan. For a long while most composers spurned it utterly, though Paganini used it, and it was the only musical instrument that Hector Berlioz had any mastery of. Today guitars are everywhere in this country, though there are still some who persist in finding them limited in range and nasty in tone.

Most others, however, admire its delicacy and expressiveness, even as a concert instrument. Ida Presti and Alexandre Lagoya have been zealous exponents in their individual careers and now in the joint one.

The music is charming, particularly the Haydn which was written originally for two lyrai, on commission from the rather batty King of Naples. None of the works was originally for guitars, but Presti and Lagoya claim that this simply proves the versatility of their instrument.
