

Redemptorist Fr. Murray's Jubilee

Redemptorist Father William Murray of St. Joseph's Church, Rochester, celebrated a solemn Mass of thanksgiving on the occasion of his golden jubilee of profession, Tuesday, Sept. 15.

He was assisted at the Mass by Father Matthew Meehan of Toronto, deacon, and Father Raymond Knab of Philadelphia, subdeacon.

Bishop Kearney presided at the Mass and ceremony, assisted by Msgr. Frank Hoefen of Our Lady of Perpetual Help Church and Msgr. George Eckel of St. Andrew's Church, Rochester. The St. Joseph Business School seniors sang the Mass.

The Redemptorist Provincial, Father Ronald Connors, read the special apostolic blessing for all those assisting at the Jubilee Mass.

Father John Roger of St. James Church, Baltimore, gave the sermon.

After the Mass, the jubilarians renewed his Redemptorist vows kneeling before Bishop Kearney who held the Bible.

Father William Murray was born in Ashabula, Ohio, but was baptized a few weeks later at St. Mary Church, Rochester. He entered the Redemptorist Novitiate at Ilchester, Maryland in 1913 and took his vows in 1914. He was ordained at Esopus, New York in 1919.

His missionary life as a Redemptorist was spent in Boston, Puerto Rico and since 1952 at St. Joseph's Church, Rochester. For 30 years he has preached many missions in surrounding areas.

At a banquet in St. Joseph's Parish Hall, Bishop Kearney congratulated Father Murray on his many years of Redemptorist missionary life. Bishop Kearney said, "Father Murray's life, like that of every priest, is spent close to God and draws its strength from those secret moments in the sanctuary at Mass, in the confessional granting mercy, and in the pulpit preaching God's words. In one very true sense the words of Kipling are true about a priest's life alone with God, 'Whether down to Gehenna or up to the throne, he travels fastest who travels alone.'"

Members of the Diocesan clergy and Redemptorist conferees from Canada and the United States attended the jubilee celebration.

Self-Help, Goal For Africans

Rabat, Morocco (NC) — Emphasis on self-help projects geared toward economic development on a local level was stressed at a meeting of directors of Catholic Relief Services-National Catholic Welfare Conference operations in Africa.

The directors outlined programs for leprosy and the development of new health centers to deal with the basic causes of sickness — malnutrition and inadequate sanitation.

THE GROUP was composed of 39 Americans and their local staffs of more than 100 who form the organization of CRS-NCWC in 22 African nations.

Auxiliary Bishop Edward E. Swanstrom of New York, executive director of CRS-NCWC, who presided at the meeting, told N.C.W.C. News Service he was happy to see the progress of American Catholic overseas aid in Africa since the program began in 1953.

"Through the fine relationships with missionary groups, Catholic institutions and agencies as well as ministries of health and welfare of the various governments, it is now possible to reach literally millions of persons and provide them with a daily sustenance of food, clothing and medicines," he said.

"Representatives of CRS have told me personally of the deep appreciation felt on all sides for efforts of the Catholics of America and the American people generally in making such programs possible through their contributions and the Thanksgiving clothing collection."

Bishop Swanstrom said he had requests from many bishops and government authorities for aid, and added that "in time it may be possible to expand into other areas of aid — particularly with emphasis on helping people help themselves."

Stigmatine Takes Vows

Charles Thomas Shute, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shute of 31 Burwell Road, Irondequoit, took his first vows in the Congregation of Priests of the Sacred Stigmatine of Our Lord Jesus Christ on Wednesday, Sept. 9, in the chapel of Our Lady of Guadalupe Novitiate, Waterville, N.Y.

A graduate of St. Margaret Mary's grammar school, Shute began studies for the congregation in 1957, following an initial interest which began at the Mission Scenerama in Rochester in 1955.

Shute spent six years at Elm Bank Juniorate in Wellfleet, Mass., and the past year of novitiate at Waterville, N.Y. He is the first Rochesterian to enter the congregation, commonly known as the Stigmatine Fathers. Following a few days' vacation in Rochester, he will begin his philosophy courses at Catholic University.

Fresh, Construction Men Rub Shoulders At Fisher

Fresh are "Kings of the Campus" at St. John Fisher College this week. Instead of deferring to upperclassmen, they're rubbing shoulders with construction workers. The professors are there too but the 210 freshmen, by far the largest class in the history of the East Avenue institution, are enjoying a unique orientation week in which they are clearly "top dogs" on the campus.

Returning students were scheduled to start classes this week along with the newcomers but now they'll hold off until next Monday.

THE CHANGE in the traditional opening week activities was necessitated by the fact that not all of the classrooms in the new St. Basil's Hall classroom and faculty office building are ready for occupancy. The extra week will give the construction crew an opportunity to put the finishing touches on necessary additional classrooms.

The contractors and their men have come close to accomplishing a miracle in making up for the eight weeks lost as a result of a strike earlier in the year, said Very Rev. Charles J. Lavery, C.S.B., president of St. John Fisher College. Thanks to their untiring efforts, he has three of the classrooms in use now, and hopes to have most of the second floor of St. Basil's Hall available for lectures next Monday.

Since so many classes were programmed for the new building, it seemed best to adjust our schedule by allowing the upperclassmen to extend their vacation by one week and to make use of what space is available to get our freshman program under way.

Ninety-four of the new freshmen are from the greater Rochester area. When the first freshman class entered in 1952, under the now familiar tower, students from the greater Rochester area, in addition to upperclassmen and rubbers, were finishing up the job of installing the windows in the new structure. More than one lecture was given in a room that boasted "natural" air conditioning. But there the parallel ends—St. Basil's Hall is air-conditioned from within.

Artificial bubbles are for seltzer —not for beer.

The idea of shooting CO<sub>2</sub> into beer has never appealed to me somehow. Oh, the process is widely used and accepted in the industry today, and I'm sure there's nothing wrong with it. It saves time and space and refrigeration, and hence money, by making it possible for a brewer to cut the aging time down to two or three weeks and still turn out a beer with "life."

But it just doesn't appeal to me. I always felt that beer should have a natural life of its own, and that's the only thing you'll ever find in a bottle of Utica Club beer. I think it makes a difference in the beer. I think it's the only way you can turn out a beer that has mellowness and maturity — by aging it properly.

And judging by the amount of Utica Club we're selling, there are still plenty of stubborn characters around who agree with me.

Walter J. Matt, President, The West End Brewing Company of Utica, N.Y.
