'Our Lady of the Grapes' at Naples Festival

Scripture says God made wine "to gladden the heart of man."

And Naples, N.Y., is where the wine is made.

Highlighting the grape harvest there, villagers put on a colorful festival last weekend which drew more than 40,000 visitors to their little community nestled in the hills south of Canandaigua Lake.

St. Januarius, patron of Naples, Italy, is also patron of the white clapboard church where Father Bernard Kuchman is pastor.

Parishioners served hundreds a country-style Italian dinner after last Saturday's parade.

A shrine with Mignard's painting of Our Lady of the Grapes has been erected in the church and children of the parish rode a float in the festival parade depicting the new shrine.

Here are some pictures of the festival.

Aquinas Institute and Nazareth Academy bands marched as a unit in Naples parade.

Louise Wilson sat atop parade float to describe parade units as they passed Naples school in heart of village.

Priest Produces New TV Service

Los Angeles—(NC)—A television drama series produced by a youthful priest on a shooting and a prayer has begun its first season with an estimated audience of 20 million.

The "Thought" series will be carried during the next 12 months on 150 U.S. stations.

Creator, producer and host of the series is Father Ellwood Kleer, C.S.P., who at 6 feet 8 inches looks more like a pro basketball center than the main-tenance of a TV series.

But in previous seasons Father Kleer who was ordained in 1956, has won the cooperation of some of the TV industry's top actors and directors—all working like himself without salary—in preparing hard-hitting dramas with a religious theme.

Starring in the first offering of the 1964-65 season are Joan Wyman and Egan Zambrini. The show, called "The Hermit," tells the true story of Charle de Foucauld, one-time French cavalry officer who sought God in the desert of North Africa.
