Nazareth Grads Publish Works

Two alumnae of Nazareth College have had works published recently.

Francesca Gull, class of '46, who now teaches English and creative writing at Nazareth Academy is the author of collection of sonnets published under the title: "A Sing of Summer."

As a student Miss Gull was poetry editor of Verity Fair, the college quarterly and later joined the faculty there. A Dante scholar, she is the author of the forthcoming "The Boy and the Stars," a versetory for children of the child Dante.

Miss Gull is a member of the Poetry Society of America, The Poetry Society of England, and the Rochester Poetry Society. Her poems have appeared in leading publications since her college days.

Another Nazareth alumna, Mary Ann Desiderio, class of '62, is co-author of an article dealing with a phase of cancer research in the July issue of the Journal of Nuclear Medicine.

Miss Desiderio collaborated with Irving L. Spar, Ph.D., on the cancer article. She is presently engaged in cancer research at Roswell Park Institute in Buffalo.

Father William Roche, diocesan superintendent of schools, and Sister Jamesetta, principal of Nazareth Academy, spoke to the St. Thomas More parents association last week on current trends and goals of Catholic schools. They were greeted by Father Francis Pegnam, right, pastor, and Mr. and Mrs. John Glavin, association presidents.

Inter-Faith Strife Aids Red Cause

By FATHER PATRICK O'CONNOR
Society of St. Columban

Saigon — (NC) — Gravely injured Catholics were dragged from their hospital beds in Danang and beaten to death. A Buddhist youth, injured during a street fight in Saigon, was killed by enraged young Catholics as he lay helpless between the two battling sides.

A Buddhist crowd captured a boy whom they took to be a Catholic, marched him through half a mile of Saigon streets and then stabbed and beat him to death.

Part of the tragedy in recent happenings in South Vietnam is this: religious principles have been set aside in the name of religion, confusedly invoked.

Catholics, in defense of their rights, violated or threatened, have done un-Christian acts. Buddhists, inflamed by politically minded hoaxes, have shattered the ethical principles of Buddhism.

From all this moral breakage and social conflict, the communists gain.

It was no wonder that some of Vietnam's Catholics lost patience. Since last November they had been often defamed and treated unfairly. In some places they had been physically harmed, unjustly imprisoned or their homes burned. They saw a section of the Buddhists whom they suspect of communist infiltration and whom they know is anti-Catholic, being flattered and favored by high authorities.

Vietnamese Catholics, who have been in the forefront of the resistance against communism, have watched the defense of the country crumbling as a result of the same process that has made them suffer.

The Buddhists have had no genuine grievances. The political hoaxes have misreplicated security measures against communist suspects as if they were acts of religious persecution.

They have been arrogant and demanding toward the weak government of this beleaguered state. They have encouraged rank injustice. They have threatened communist aims.

All this at length provoked a Catholic reaction. But it does not justify every form taken by this reaction.

Catholic demonstrators outside the Vietnamese armed forces headquarters here on Aug. 27 feared that the military council would choose a leader who would favor neutralism and thus open the door to the communists. This fear was fomented by one or two general who took advantage of the northern refugee Catholics' horror of communism.

The demonstration went beyond all limits of legality and prudence. Some of the crowd tried to storm the barbed-wire barricades and force their way into the headquarters enclosure, in spite of the armed guard facing them. This was done by one boy killed outright and five persons fatally wounded.

Jesuit General Dies in Rome

Vatican City — (NC) — Father Jean Baptiste Janssens, S.J., the 27th general of the Society of Jesus, died here Oct. 5 minutes after receiving a final absolution at the hands of Pope Paul VI. He was 71.

Father Janssens had been general of the Church's largest religious community since 1948. Until a new general is elected, the society has been administered by its vicar general, Father John L. Swain, S.J., of Fort Townsend, Wash., a member of the Seattle province of the Jesuits.

Father Janssens has been ill health for several years. He died of heart failure and lung edema less than a week after being stricken with a severe cerebral thrombosis.

Pope Paul arrived 20 minutes before Father Janssens died and imparted final absolution. There are more than 35,000 members of the society throughout the world. In the United States there are 5,385 Jesuit priests, 2,740 seminarians, and 680 Brothers.

LBJ Aide Visits Pope, Council

Vatican City — (NC) — Brooks Hays, special assistant to President Lyndon Johnson and brother-in-law of the President, visited the Pope and the Council of Cardinals and Jews, was received in private audience by Pope Paul VI and later attended a Vatican Council meeting at the invitation of the Pope.

This makes him the first American government official ever to attend a Catholic ecumenical council.

He emphasized he was an unofficial observer at the Council for one day only. He said that his visit to the Pope was unofficial, although he brought special greetings from President Johnson and would remain with the Pope's greeting to the President.

The former congressman and former president of the Southern Baptist Convention, said at a press conference following the audience that during his visit he was primarily a chairman interested in the ecumenical developments in the council.

"I have been thrilled and somewhat surprised at the amount of progress made, since I am aware of the tortuous route, necessary in making changes, especially in a Church with such a long history," said Catholic Church. "But progress is thrilling," he declared.

Referring to the debates in the Council hall on religious liberty, Hays said: "I am sure my Catholic friends will understand my pride as an American in the eloquent statement of cardinals and bishops from my country on these topics. Baptists, of course, are particularly interested in discussions relating to religious liberty. Speaking for myself alone, I am confident the ultimate decision reached here will strengthen this cause wherever devotion to it has lagged."

No Dancing On Saturday

Galway, Ireland — (NC) — Bishop Michael Browne of Galway has urged the faithful of his diocese not to go out dancing on Saturday nights.

He reminded his congregation that "there has long been a rule in Galway which has notably helped attendance at Sunday Mass and Communion by excluding dances on Saturday night and the eve of holy days."

"This regulation," the bishop stated, "has been loyally and faithfully observed by the owners and managers of public houses and clubs. But recently some hotels have organized dinner dances on Saturday nights, and business firms, clubs and societies have chosen the same night for social functions."

Imitate St. Francis, Pope Tells Throngs

Vatican City — (NC) — Pope Paul VI urged a congregation at St. Peter's basilica to heed the message of St. Francis of Assisi and pledge themselves to follow his example in the imitation of Christ.

Later in the day, the Pope told crowds gathered in St. Peter's square that devotion to Mary should lead us to Christ and not away from Him.

Speaking during Mass on St. Francis' feast (Oct. 4), the Pope noted that "after seven centuries not only Catholics and other Christians, but followers of other religious confessions as well, and people belonging to every social class, surround the figure of the saint with devoted admiration and veneration."

Funeral Rites Offered For Sister Francis Borgia

Priests and parishioners of St. Mary's, Canandaigua, and of St. Bridget's paid tribute to Sister Francis Borgia, S.S.J., at her funeral last Wednesday. Sister had taught the primary grade at St. Bridget's for 34 years, and had completed five years of teaching the fourth grade at St. Mary's, Canandaigua. The faculty of St. Mary's School attended the funeral and more than sixty students of the school formed a body guard.

Sister Francis Borgia entered the Sisters of St. Joseph in 1922 from St. Patrick's Cathedral parish. She taught at St. Bridget's from 1928-1959 and at St. Mary's, Canandaigua, from 1959-1964. Sister's death followed a short illness.

Surviving are a brother Alexander, director of Rochester, and several nieces and nephews.

Meets Greek Patriarch

Athens — (NC) — The head of the Vatican Secretariat for Promoting Christian Unity met the Primate of the Orthodox Church of Greece here and greeted him with the same embrace the Pope used in the Holy Land last January on meeting the Ecumenical Patriarch of Constantinople.

The meeting between Cardinal Augustin Bea and Archbishop Chrysostomos of Athens was the first such official high-level encounter between the independent Orthodox Church of Greece and the Roman Catholic Church in centuries.

Cardinal Bea came to Athens after taking back to the Orthodox cathedral at Patras the relic of the skull of St. Andrew which has been in the Vatican for five centuries.

According to members of the papal mission who accompanied Cardinal Bea, the Monday morning meeting (Sept. 28) between the Cardinal and Archbishop Chrysostomos "took place in an atmosphere of great cordiality and brotherhood." Archbishop Chrysostomos, who previously had been cool to ecumenical gestures on the part of the Holy See, and had opposed the meeting between Pope Paul VI and Patriarch Athenagoras of Constantinople.
